Elizabeth Gets Huge Welcome In Washington

Eisenhower Greets Royal Pair; Capital Is Thrilled by Visit

WASHINGTON (UP) — Britain's captivating Queen Elizabeth II swept into the nation's capital today to one of the biggest fanciest red carpet welcomes ever extended a distinguished visitor.

Hundreds of thousands, including President Eisenhower, greeted her.

The 31-year-old sovereign, seemingly tireless in the face of unending ceremony, stepped from Eisenhower's personal plane to the cheers of thousands at Washington National Airport.

She flew in from Williamsburg, Va., at 11:12 a.m. e.d.t.

In a brief airport speech she brought greetings from "my peoples of every race and creed in the British Commonwealth of Nations."

She said she expected her visit to Washington and New York to be "a memorable experience."

The President was there to greet her and her dashing consort, Prince Philip, and to escort them to the White House along the crowded, flag-decked streets to start a ceremony-packed four-day state visit.

Mrs. Eisenhower waited at the White House to give them a personal welcome on the "front porch"—the north portico.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and a host of high diplomatic and military officials were with the President for the formal airport welcome.

"I am sorry that we can not visit other parts of this great continent on this occasion but I would like the whole American people, north, south, east and west, to know how happy we are to be here and I send them all my warmest good wishes."

The skies were heavily overcast as the Queen stepped from the plane with Philip.

While a band played 'God Save the Queen" and the "Star Spangled Banner," cannons boomed a solemn 21-gun salute as the royal pair stepped to the reviewing stand.

Arrive in Columbine

The royal couple flew here aboard the presidential plane Columbine III from Patrick Henry Airport near Newport News, Va., after a whirlwind tour of the historic early British settlements at Jamestown and Williamsburg on Virginia's tidewater peninsula.

The weather both there and here was overcast, and brief early-morning showers wetted the flag-bedecked streets of Washington.

The parade route from the airport took them along the Potomac, close by the Pentagon, across the Memorial Bridge to the Lincoln Memorial, along Constitution Avenue to 12th Street, thence along Pennsylvania Avenue, and doubling back to the White House. Lamp posts all along the way bore the flags of all the commonwealth nations from the ancient motherland to the newest—Ghana in Africa.

Strung from high fire ladders was a huge banner across Pennsylvania Avenue which proclaimed the theme of the day:

"Welcome Queen Elizabeth."

The Queen and Prince Philip promised to captivate Washington with their engaging informality as they did in Jamestown and Williamsburg Wednesday and in their four-day visit to Canada.

They were up early this morning, despite a late party laden with southern hospitality at the Colonial Williamsburg Inn. Surprisingly they both looked fresh and eager to extend the friendship of their nation.

Steel Upturn Seen; Strike Likely in 1958

SHARON, Pa. (UP) — Tom C. Campbell, editor-in-chief of Iron Age, predicted Wednesday higher steel prices and a spurt in steel buying in 1958.

"Higher prices will follow as soon as the automatic steel wage increases go into effect July next and there is expectation for a strong pickup in steel production in the latter part of 1958, spurred by a 60-40 chance of a long steel strike in 1959," he said.

He said David J. McDonald, head of the United Steelworkers Union, will be "hitting the steel industry with a long line of costly demands" at that time.

Campbell also predicted a definite trend sometime in 1958 away from day-to-day buying and reduction of inventories, especially steel products.

He spoke at a dinner honoring Henry A. Roemer, retiring board chairman and president of Sharon Steel Corp.

Commenting on the auto industry, Campbell said "there is a 65-35 chance for an automobile strike next June 1."

He said there will be a "mild" improvement in steel and machinery buying in the final two months of this year and "whatever the automobile people fail to order this year they must make up for in the early months of 1958."

He said Russia's Sputnik has put the "heat on" the White House to do something and there are indications that the satellite already "has quickened action by our military and the administration."

Campbell said "the general satellite philosophy will soon react on many of the nation's buyers who may take a second look at their 'hand - to - mouth' purchasing habits."

Campbell said in his opinion there is nothing to justify fears that steel ordering will take a turn for the worse or that "the metalworking industry is heading into a serious recession."

Bellmar - Rostraver Game Postponed

Bellmar High School officials announced early this afternoon that the Bellmar-Rostraver game scheduled for Rostraver tonight has been postponed until Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

The game had been set up until noon today. Continued rain caused the postponement.

30 Deaths From Flu In Nation

By UNITED PRESS

A rash of flu epidemics around the nation has claimed more than 30 lives in the past few days, with about one-third of the victims children in Illinois and Pennsylvania schools for the mentally retarded.

The latest tragic flu outbreak killed five youths at the Dixon, Ill., State School for the Mentally Retarded. It followed on the heels of a lethal outbreak which killed six children at the Pennhurst State Training School near Philadelphia Tuesday.

Health officials in Washington expressed concern over the upswing in deaths from Asian Flu and allied ailments, and the U. S. Public Health Service acted to bring its reports of flu outbreaks up to date.

A United Press survey since Monday showed at least 31 deaths blamed on flu and resulting complications, eight of them in Pennsylvania, five in Illinois, four in Michigan, three each in Indiana and New Jersey, and two each in Ohio, Utah, Wisconsin and New York State.

Epidemic Hits School

At Dixon, Ill., State Welfare Director Otto L. Bettag revealed Wednesday night that a suspected flu epidemic at the school for mentally retarded children has stricken 1,183 of the 4,883 inmates and 70 of its 850 employes.

Bettag said the epidemic broke out Sept. 30, and all five deaths were due to pneumonia brought on by the flu. The first victim died Oct. 5 and the latest Wednesday.

The incidence of respiratory illnesses climbed across the nation, with many states reporting case loads in the thousands. Children and young adults appeared to be the chief flu victims.

The disease made heavy inroads on college campuses, forcing cancellation of a number of weekend football games. Among the games knocked out by the flu was Slippery Rock State Teachers College vs. Western P serve in Pennsylvania.

Flu also downed the previously unbeaten Drake University team, forcing cancellation of its tilt with Colorado State University. The Colorado Aggies appealed for an alternate opponent.

Football Games Cancelled

Illinois Wesleyan cancelled its game with Weaton and Kentucky State stepped in to fill the gap. Other games cancelled included the Bowdoin - Williams College game in New England and the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute game against Union College in New York.

Also in New York, a Colgate University student died after coming down with a flu-like illness. At Iowa State, about 300 students

Six Groups to Have Floats in Halloween Fete

Six organizations already have announced they will enter floats in the Monessen Haloween parade set for Thursday, Oct. 31, Edward G. Lhota, general chairman, announced today.

Submitting entries were American Legion Thomas McKee Post 28, Lions Club, Beta Sigma Phi, Junior Women's Club, Rotary Club and Monessen Movie Club.

Other organizations are invited to enter the float competition, Lhota said. Entry fee is $10.

The chairman announced that over $600 in prizes will be awarded to the best, funniest and most originally dressed participants.

Music will be provided by bands from Monessen and Rostraver high schools, the Monessen Boys Brigade and Fayette City drum and bugle corps. Three other musical organizations, including the Donora Scottish Kilt band, are expected to take part.

Soviet Official Claims Missile Very Accurate

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Soviet Embassy official here claims that Russia's intercontinental ballistic missile is capable of hitting target "exactly."

Alexander T. Oustinov, First Secretary at the Embassy, also said the Russian space satellite is not sending coded messages as it circles the earth.

It was reported meanwhile that the Soviets probably will launch a second satellite within the next three weeks. It is expected to be even larger than the present 184-pound Sputnik, according to informed foreign diplomatic officials.

Spoke To Students

Oustinov cited Russia's satellite success as one of several examples of Soviet scientific advances at nearby College Park, Md.

He listed one of these as the Soviet ICBM which he said "has a very long range, exactly hitting on target."

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said yesterday Russia has been working on ballistic missiles for some time and "probably has some advance over us" in that field of "potential" military activity.

The Soviet diplomat said the present Red moon is equipped with only two radio transmitters. He said Soviet scientists can gather information from the signals transmitted only by their charac-

West Fears Moscow's Wild Propaganda May Touch Spark, Start War

By UNITED PRESS

Moscow Radio said today the United States Sixth Fleet was massing "not far from Syria's shores" and that U. S. and British warships were en route to Israel.

It was the latest of a series of Soviet statements that have aroused fears in Western nations that Russia might stumble over its own propaganda and touch off World War III.

In Cairo the government - controlled Middle East News Agency reported from Damascus that Syria's army had been placed in a state of emergency because of the threat from Turkey.

It said all Syrian army leaves were cancelled and that the army distributed arms among civilian popular resistance units at Aleppo and other points in northern Syria.

Verge of War Warning

There was no confirmation of the agency reports which followed a series of stern statements by Syria and the Soviet Union and a warning by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the United Nations that the Mid East was close to war.

There was no immediate U. S. reaction to Gromyko's harsh statements in the United Nations, but Dulles already had warned that Soviet intervention in any Turco-Syrian action would bring U. S. retaliation against the Soviet Union itself.

The U. N. Steering Committee meanwhile was expected to meet today or tomorrow to consider Syria's request for an investigation of Turkish troop concentrations. The United States backed the move but was expected to ask that troop concentrations in Syria and Russia also be studied.

U. S. Navy Near Syria

The latest Soviet blast over Moscow Radio against the United States was beamed to North America. It said "foreign troops were being concentrated on Syria's boundaries and not far from Syria's shores ships of the United States Sixth Fleet are gathering."

It also broadcast an editorial in the official Soviet government newspaper Izvestia describing as "hypocritical" a British Foreign Office statement of Tuesday saying there was no threat against Syria.

Turkey ramained calm and officials in Istanbul said they welcomed U. S. assurances it will stand by Turkey in case of attack by Syria or Russia. Officials said the Foreign Ministry had begun closed door consideration of a "new line of conduct" on strained relations with Syria.

Nixon's Visit to Europe Called Off

WASHINGTON (UP)—The White House announced today that a projected European tour by Vice President Richard M. Nixon has been deferred until next year.

The White House said Nixon had planned to visit Europe this fall. The trip will be postponed, it said, until after the next session of Congress.

The White House explained that the Vice President could not make the trip this fall and still fulfill commitments in Washington.

Transit Union Members to Hear From Leaders

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Striking trolley and bus operators will meet this afternoon to hear from their union leaders on the issues in their four-day walkout against Pittsburgh Railways Co.

The temper of the meeting may indicate whether the union membership will stand by their leaders' demands for a wage increase of 36 cents an hour.

During last-minute negotiations prior to the strike, which started Monday, the union had reduced its demand to 31 cents. The company's "final" offer was 16 cents, plus "freezing" of a current 4-cent cost-of-living adjustment into the basic rate.

The company offer was turned down by the union negotiators and was not put before the union membership for a vote.

After the start of the strike the union leadership reverted to its original wage demand.

The striking 2,200 trolley and bus operators are members of Division 85, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes.

Their strike has deprived the Pittsburgh district of nearly all its mass public transportation facilities.

Mayor David Lawrence appealed to residents Wednesday night to share their cars with neighbors in aiding others to get to town and carry on "as if there were no transit strike." The mayor's appeal came as fear grew the strike might impede business in the center-city area.

Downtown merchants reported shopping dropped Monday and Tuesday.

Local Man Is Winner of Last Week's Contest

Steve Mahalko, of 1072 Alexander Ave., Monessen, won top honors in the The Daily Independent's flu-abbreviated grid contest last week with a perfect card.

Mahalko had the three games played selected correctly and also guessed the top point game, Pitt's 34-0 win over Nebraska, for the $15 first award.

Three others tied for second place with Fred Rico, 116 Third St., Vaughn Wilkins, 499 Reed Ave., and Paul Malinchak, 81 Pennsylvania Blvd., dividing the second and thrid awards for $4.20 each.

To avoid repetition of last week's shortened high school card, only college and professional games are listed in this week's contest.

Building Drive Of Salvation Army Near End

A total of $3,390 is needed by Saturday to reach the $23,690 goal of the Monessen Salvation Army building fund campaign, Harry C. Gribben, general chairman, announced today.

Gribben urges all committeemen to complete their solicitations by the deadline Saturday.

Of the $20,300 collected thus far, $18,000 of it has been used to help pay off the mortgage on the new building at Third St. and Schoonmaker Ave. The remaining $2,300 and other money collected will be disposed of after the campaign is completed.

The final report of the campaign committee is scheduled for next week, Gribben said.

Suitor Kills Divorcee On Street in Weirton

WEIRTON, W. Va. (UP) — A vivacious 28-year-old divorcee was shot and killed on a Weirton street today by an apparently rejected suitor who shouted, "If I can't have you, no one else can."

Mrs. Audrey Tyce, divorced mother of two young sons, was slain by four bullets from a .357 magnum pistol wielded by steelworker Carrol Dean Brewer, 27.

Brewer admitted in a signed statement that he accosted Mrs. Tyce about a block from her home as she was walking to work, felled her with a bullet in the heart and fired three more times as she crumpled to the sidewalk.

Weirton Police Chief Dave Reese said Brewer would be charged with murder following an inquest at 7:30 e.d.t. this evening.

Brewer, who is employed at the big Weirton Steel Co. plant here, said he had been unable to sleep last night and went to Mrs. Tyce's home about 6:30 a.m. Finding that she already had left for work, he started down Avenue F and caught up with the young woman a block away.

By his own admission he told Mrs. Tyce "If I can't have you, no one else can," then pulled a pistol from his belt and shot the woman.

Brewer's statement said he fired only three times but an examination at a hospital showed that Mrs. Tyce was struck in the chest and abdomen by four bullets. She apparently died instantly.

Brewer then threw the pistol to the ground, hailed a taxi and went to the police station to surrender.

Other than his words to Mrs. Tyce, Brewer's statement did not elaborate on his motive for the slaying.

Police said he had been drinking heavily prior to the shooting and was under the influence of alcohol when he surrendered.

Mrs. Tyce, an attractive brunette, lived with her two sons, age two and four, and was employed in a downtown tavern. The home is located in a residential section adjoining the Weirton Steel Co. mills.

Police said they were unable to determine immediately how long Brewer, who is only about five feet tall and weighs 100 pounds, and Mrs. Tyce had known each other.

Perry School Closed by Flu

Another district school closed today because of the current flu-type epidemic.

The latest to dismiss classes until Monday was Perry-Lower Tyrone in the Perryopolis area. Students were sent home yesterday when absenteeism made holding classes impractical.

Yesterday classes at Bellmarette Joint School District were suspended until Monday.

School officials at Monessen and Rostraver Twp. today said attendance at their school is normal for this time of year. Both were hit heavily . . the epidemic two weeks ago.

Dinner Tonight Starts Civic Music Drive

A kick-off dinner tonight at 6:30 at Johnson's Restaurant will officially launch the annual membership campaign of the Monessen-Belle Vernon Civic Music Association.

Guests at tonight's dinner will be James Browning, of New York City, regional director of Civic Concert Service of New York, with which Civic Music is affiliated.

The membership campaign for the sixth season of winter concerts will be conducted until Oct. 26 with the membership list closing on that date.

Only members are admitted to the programs at Monessen High auditorium.

Civic Music had over 900 members last season, but campaign workers are hoping to hit the capacity of 1,000 members this year.

Campaign headquarters actually opened last Monday at Rosenson's Furniture Store, Sixth St. and Donner Ave., in order that present members could have priority in renewing memberships. Following tonight's dinner, membership will be on a first-come, first served basis

Dues are $6 for adults and $3 for students, the same as in previous years.

All Civic Music funds are used for artists' fees and other expenses in connection with the programs. There are no profits.

Four concerts have been presented each year and a similar number is expected to be arranged for this season.

Mrs. Paul Latkanich, Civic Music president, will preside at the dinner. Campaign workers will receive materials and instructions.

Hosts for the dinner will be the Pittsburgh Steel Co., Page Division of American Chain & Cable Co., First Federal Savings & Loan Association and The Daily Independent.

Flu Vaccine Rushed to Stricken State School

1,200 Children Now Sick at School for Mentally Retarded

BULLETIN

The State Mental Health Commissioner said today the epidemic at the Pennhurst State School for the Mentally Retarded, where six children have died from flu-like illness, is passed its peak.

Dr. Robert A. Matthews said the other children stricken ill at the school in Spring City were "on the road to recovery." He said there were 444 children ill this morning as compared to 1,299 Wednesday.

By UNITED PRESS

A supply of Asian flu vaccine was rushed Wednesday night to Pennhurst State School for the Mentally Retarded in Spring City where an epidemic of flu-like illness killed six patients and put three others on the critical list.

State Police took the vaccine to Pennhurst which reported more than 1,200 patients suffering from the virus which has as yet not been positively identified as Asian flu. About 50 of 400 attendants are also infected. The sixth death, an 11-year-old girl, occurred at the school Wednesday.

The epidemic has spread throughout other areas of Pennsylvania. Two deaths from a respiratory illness were reported Tuesday in the Allegheny Valley.

Absenteeism forced scores of schools to close throughout the state, including four colleges. The colleges are Washington and Jefferson at Washington, Lycoming College at Williamsport, Lehigh University at Bethlehem and Slippery Rock State Teachers at Slippery Rock.

Other colleges reported their infirmaries and hospitals filled and many who couldn't be accommodated were sent home.

In the Pittsburgh area, 15,000 public school students and 21,000 parochial students were absent. Absenteeism in public and parochial schools in the Philadelphia area reached the 70,000 mark, Dr. James P. Dixon, City Health Commissioner said.

Forty per cent absenteeism resulted in the closing of three school districts in Somerset County at Shanksville-Stoney Creek, Salisburg-Elk and Rockwood. Earlier the Turkeyfoot Valley District in Somerset County closed. Many private schools throughout the state have closed but Philadelphia authorities say there is no thought of closing their schools.

Scores of college and high school football games have been cancelled because of the epidemic.

Harrisburg school authorities reported that the highest rate of absenteeism in the city was at the John Harris High School where 31 per cent, or 346 pupils of the 1,130 enrollment were out.

The Upper Dauphin Jointure school district, which includes Elizabethtown High School, was closed for the rest of the week as a precautionary measure following some respiratory illness.

WASHINGTON (UP)—There have now been more than 1,500,000 cases of influenza in the United States.

This was disclosed today in a U.S. Public Health Service report which said that Asian flu cases have been confirmed in all sections of the nation.

The agency said at least 360,000 new cases of influenza or flu-like diseases were reported last week, bringing to at least 1,470,000 the cumulative total since the first Asian flu outbreak early this summer.

Virginia Polytechnic quarantined its entire 1,700 - member cadet corps and sick cadets were treated its intra - mural sports porgram and students at Ohio Wesleyan were warned to get Asian flu shots or "look for another school."

An outbreak at Atlanta, Ga., prompted officials to release 24 prisoners and authorities said they planned to release 36 more.

At Norfolk, Va., Navy officials reported 1,920 sailors aboard ships participating in NATO exercises in the North Atlantic were stricken with flu.

A happy expectant throng that lined her way into Washington was ready to reciprocate.

The colorful procession, with the Queen in the lead, included two battalions of marching U.S. navymen, Marines, soldiers and airmen. There also were color bearers, a color guard, and a flying wedge of mounted motorcycle policemen.

The Queen and Prince Philip rode with President Eisenhower in the lead car. They were followed by automobiles bearing Canadian Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker and Dulles; Mrs. Diefenbaker and Mrs. Dulles, and British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd and Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The remainder of the motorcade was made up of five double rows of cars carrying the ambassadors and wives of the 10 British commonwealth nations. Behind them came more cars with American officials.

Not in a long time had Washington engineered such a welcome. Rarely does President Eisenhower himself drive to the airport to bring back an important visitor. And even more rarely is the motorcade back into town turned into a parade, with massed colors, marching troops and military bands.

He said one or two more Red earth satellites will be launched during the International Geophysical Year— which ends Dec. 31, 1958. These will be equipped, Oustinov said, with special apparatus "to measure the force of the pushing of microscopic particles against its surface" and instruments to "reflect the influence" of x-rays of the sun.

The Russians already have said officially their second satellite will be a more complete scientific vehicle than this country's official instrumented moon - shot, now scheduled for next March.

As for the timing of the second Soviet "shot," diplomats expect it will occur around Nov. 7—the date of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

French Reds in Plea for Strikes On Algeria 'War'

PARIS (UP)—The French Communist Party ordered its five million followers to hold nationwide strikes and demonstrations today against "The Dirty Little War" in Algeria. Widespread violence was feared.

Communist unions joined with non-Communist unions Wednesday in turning the nation's industrial life into chaos in a 12-hour strike of gas and electrical workers. The Reds believed the 18-day-old government crisis would paralyze police attempts to crush the demonstrations.

The Communists also hoped widespread disorders would block the efforts of tough- anti-Communist Conservative leader Antoine Pinay to win National Assembly approval Friday as the 24th postwar premier. His chances appeared shaky.

Police told the Communists they would crush any attempt at demonstrations and they braced for violence. It was the first Communist Party show of strength since it suffered a staggering loss of support in France following the Hungarian revolution. Non-Communist unions planned to remain on the job today.

Murder Trial Jury Is Told About Threat

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A witness told a murder trial jury today that Andrew R. Snavely, 22, McKeesport, charged with inflicting fatal injuries to a Clairton man in a fight over a woman, threatened to kill the victim.

Donald R. Fulton, 21, Liberty Borough, described the fight between Snavely, an auto salesman, and Steve Goca, 35, a scrap metal dealer. Goca died a few hours after the fight.

Fulton said he was in a lunchroom when he saw Goca "half running" after Snavely and a girl companion, Violet Preston, 25, McKeesport. He testified Goca spun the girl around.

"The next thing I saw," he testified, "was Goca on the ground and Snavely hitting him."

Fulton quoted Navely as saying: "Get up and I'll kill you."

Annual Talent Search Begins

WASHINGTON (UP)—The annual Westinghouse Science Talent Search, which will award $34,250 in scholarships to winning high school seniors, began today.

Because of an expanded grant from the Westinghouse Educational Foundation, the amount awarded this year more than triples the $11,000 distributed each year in the past. Last year, 20,000 students entered the contest.

Contest judges will select 40 national winners who then will attend a five-day Science Talent Institute here and vie for the top five scholarships. Their entire trip will be free of expense.

PTA Program Devoted To Talks on Greece

An imaginary trip to Greece highlighted the program of the Monessen Parent-Teacher Association last night in the High School auditorium. It was arranged in keeping with United Nations Month.

Guest speaker was Georgette Vernaccini, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Vernaccini of Montraver Dr., who spent the summer as an exchange student in Greece under the American Field Service program.

Miss Vernaccini told of her trip abroad and displayed authentic Greek attire, all handmade, since dress shops are little known in that country. She described her "adopted family" and life while in Greece and told of the customs and manner of living followed by the Greek people. She displayed dolls, embroidery, jewelry and other items which she brought back with her.

At the conclusion of her talk Miss Vernaccini introduced Elizabeth Farnetti, who is here from Italy as an exchange student at Monessen High.

Teacher Presented

Continuing with the Greek theme, W.R.H. Patterson, PTA president, introduced Mrs. Helen Soteropoulis, who conducts a Greek school in Monessen. Another nationalistic feature was the presentation of authentic Greek dances by a group of members from the GAPA Young Ladies Lodge.

In the dancing group were Callie Moundros, Frances Moundros, Casey Peters, Irene Pagonis, Katherine Pagonis, Marie Pagonis, Phyllis Georgagis and Mary Georgagis.

An organ recital played by Judy Bezuska preceded the session. Mrs. John Dragan gave the invocation and reported on a meeting of the executive board.

Mrs. Edward Musial, membership chairman, reported that membership is still increasing and is open to parents, teachers and friends of the students.

Mrs. John Stieska announced that plans are complete for a smorgasbord to be held Oct. 22 from 5 to 7 p. m. in the High School cafeteria. Tickets are available from the homeroom mothers.

Tamburitzan Concert

A second ways and means project will be a concert by the Duquesne University Tamburitzans on Nov. 7.

After the meeting a buffet luncheon was served in the cafeteria. Jack-o-lanterns and fall foliage decorated the tables.

Mrs. Michael Kunsa, general chairman, arranged for the social hour with Mrs. Denver Rhome, hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Rip Menefee, building chairman, in charge.

Assisting them were Mrs. Robert Layman, Mrs. Andrew Sholtis, Mrs. Charles Imburgia, Mrs. Edward Kujawa, Mrs. James Como, Mrs. Charles Winfield, Mrs. Paul Lucas, Mrs. Anthony Stupakis, Mrs. S. Faraci, Mrs. Ralph Palmer, Mrs. Ernest Piisila and Mrs. Roy Cadwalder.

Federal units headed by armored cars moved in to break up strike violence after state police under orders of Sao Paulo state governor Janio Quadros had refused to intervene.

Charge Driver Of School Bus

ARDMORE, Pa., (UP) — A Philadelphia school bus driver was held Wednesday on charges of being intoxicated when his bus struck a tree near here earlier, injuring nine parochial school children.

Nineteen other children on the bus, driven by Little Joseph Morris, 52, escaped injury when it struck a tree in Wynnewood. The injured children were treated at Lankenau Hospital and discharged.

Police said the children were being driven to their homes from the Presentation of the Blessed Virgin Mary School in Penn Wynne when the bus struck a tree about 75 feet west of an intersection.

Dr. Walter J. Stein of Ardmore, who examined Morris in the absence of police surgeons, pronounced him intoxicated.

YOU'RE KIDDING!

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP)—Police yawned when a woman called yesterday and frantically told them a pair of elephants was lumbering down a highway toward her home. It was the real thing this time, however, and the stray pachyderms were returned to the Clyde Beatty Circus.

Elizabeth and Philip Wow 'Em in Virginia

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip wowed 'em in Virginia.

The sprightly British sovereign and her handsome husband, Wednesday stepped from a gleaming airplane into the smoky red and gold of a Virginia autumn and were all but smothered in southern hospitality.

Crowds came from across the street and across the nation to see the royal pair. Housewives sat in camp chairs for five hours to await their arrival at the airport.

Town Turns Out

Williamsburg, a town that makes a living by living in the past, put its best silver-buckled foot forward in friendly welcome to the monarch and her spouse.

At nearby Jamestown they visited the swampy shore where a tiny, daring band of Englishmen 350 years ago rooted the first permanent British colony in the New World.

They saw the crumbling red brick tower of the church, only remaining structure of the colony, and attended a brief service.

On the James River's bank they broke their schedule to examine replicas of the three tiny ships which bore 104 colonists across the Atlantic. Philip, a naval officer with a lively curiosity, seemed especially interested in the largest craft, the Constant, which they boarded.

Visits Oldest College

The Queen and her handsome consort took tea at the College of William and Mary and toured the Wren Building, oldest academic structure in the United States.

On the balcony they exchanged gifts with college officials and Philip captured the crowd with a quip that he is Chancellor of the University of Edinburgh—"sort of a nebulous super-president."

After visiting the governor's palace, and attending a reception for 1,250 persons, they went to the restored former capitol with Winthrop Rockefeller, whose family dumped $61,500,000 into restoring Williamsburg.

At last the long tour was over but not the long day. After a brief rest the royal couple were guests at a glittering formal dinner.

"Gypsy" goes into service October 20 to add 300 lines to Belle Vernon exchange

There will soon be a gypsy in our midst!

"Gypsy" is the name of a mobile dial telephone unit that is parked on a lot on Perry Street, in Fairhope, to help us handle the rapidly growing demand for telephone service in the Belle Vernon exchange area.

When it goes into operation at 3:01 A.M. (DST) on Sunday October 20, this mobile unit will add 300 lines to the facilities of the Belle Vernon exchange and many telephones in this area will have new "Gypsy" numbers. Belle Vernon numbers will still be in effect for telephones not being converted to dial operation at this time. It is planned that "Gypsy" will remain in operation until the entire area is converted to dial operation—some time in 1959. Meanwhile there will be some duplication of numbers among telephones served by the Belle Vernon and the "Gypsy" offices. Please consult your new directory for the correct numbers and for detailed calling information.

Little Rock Slips Into Routine Under Reduced Guard

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — The Little Rock integration crisis slipped back into a tense routine today, with a reduced soldier guard protecting Negro students at Central High School and no end of the deadlock in sight.

The Army flew 500 men of the 1,000 elite troops of the 101st Airborne Division in Little Rock back to their home base at Fort Campbell, Ky., Wednesday.

The Army's decision to leave 500 paratroopers in Little Rock, besides 1,500 federalized National Guardsmen showed the White House has no intention of relenting on the continued integration of Central.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus said he has no intention of giving President Eisenhower additional assurances that the Negroes will be protected and integration continued if federal troops are withdrawn.

Will Not Withdraw

The only other way to solve the crisis would be to withdraw the nine Negroes from Central High and Mrs. L. C. Bates, President of the Arkansas Chapter of the NAACP, said that is out.

She said the only way the Negroes will leave school will be because of "lack of protection."

Mrs. Bates said she believes troops will have to protect the Negroes throughout the school year, and "many more (Negroes) will be in Central next year."

She said she also knew that white students had made Terrance Robert, 16, one of the Negroes, so miserable that he wanted to quit and return to a segregated school.

"Those kids had hell out there the first couple of days, but they are coming through all right," she said.

"It was up to their parents whether they stayed or not."

Terrance and Melba Patillo, 15, stayed home with flu the first three days of the week.

Get First Report Cards

The seven who attended Wednesday got their first report cards of the fall semester, along with 1,990 white students.

It was understood that many of the Negroes' grades were marked "incomplete" on their report cards, since they attended only part of the first six weeks.

The Negroes, by mutual agreement, decided not to make their grades public.

The Negroes are still brought to school and taken home every day in an Army station wagon, escorted front and behind by soldiers in jeeps.

But when they arrive at school, one officer escorts them to the door, instead of the 12 or 15 soldiers with rifles who used to surround them.

Reporters were admitted to Central High for the first time Wednesday, though photographers still were barred.

VFW Steps Up Drive for Votes On Korean Bonus

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars today stepped up its drive for a Korean War bonus for Pennsylvania veterans by pointing out 17 other states have granted similar bonuses.

The Pennsylvania department of the VFW listed these states as having granted compensation to veterans of the Korean conflict:

Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Iowa,, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington and West Virginia.

The VFW also listed California, Nebraska, Texas and Wyoming as giving other benefits in lieu of bonuses to Korean veterans.

A Pennsylvania bonus question will be on the ballot for approval or disapproval by the voters in November. It would authorize borrowing of 150 million dollars to pay veterans an average of $350.

Blue Cross Seeks 21 Per Cent Rate Boost

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Hospital Service Assn. of Western Pennsylvania, the Blue Cross agency, has asked the state Insurance Department for approval to raise rates about 21 per cent.

William H. Ford, association president, said rising hospital costs and growing use of hospitals made the increase necessary. The increase was filed to go into effect Dec. 1.

Ford, in announcing the request Wednesday said the proposed increase would affect the so called "21-90 group" and the 21-day non-group contracts.

The 21-90 group policy pays all ordinary hospital expenses for 21 days and half of these expenses for 90 days.

The 21-day non-group policy pays all ordinary hospital expenses for 21 days for non-group members.

The proposed increase would not affect subscribers under the new standard semi-private benefits program or contracts negotiated annually with management and labor.

The state Insurance Department was expected to hold public hearings on the proposal before acting.

Albert Camus, French Author, Nobel Winner

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UP)—Existentialist French author Albert Camus was awarded the 1957 Nobel Prize for Literature today.

He was the second youngest writer in history ever to win the high honor, with Britain's Rudyard Kipling the only one younger when he won it.

Camus was given this year's $40,000 prize for "his important literary production which, with clear-sighted earnestness, illuminates the problems of the human conscience in our time."

The literature prize was the second of this year's Nobel prizes to be awarded. The Nobel Committee of the Norwegian Storting (parliament) awarded the peace prize earlier this week to Lester Pearson, former Canadian external affairs minister, for his part in setting up the United Nations Emergency Force in the Mideast.

Camus has won worldwide fame for a number of novels and plays noted for their bitter outlook on life. His best-known novel, "The Plague," is typical of his work. It speaks for the disillusioned French generation which grew up just in time to face World War II.

He is best known to American readers for his novel "La Chute" (The Fall), which was published in an English translation and is on current best seller lists.

Court Prevents Sale of Cooler

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A preliminary injunction enjoining a Leetsdale, Pa., firm from representing a portable cooler as being produced by the Hamilton Cooler Corp., Hamilton, Ohio, was issued in Common Pleas Court Wednesday.

Judge Henry Ellenbogen set Oct. 22 for a hearing to determine whether the injunction against the Standard Can Corporation shall be made permanent.

The Hamilton firm contended Standard made a cooler covered with scotch plaid, specially designed by Hamilton and "unlawfully" offered it to the public after Hamilton had spent much money for advertising its own similar cooler.

Stocks Decline Again Today

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks declined further today with volume rising.

Opening trades generally brought out fractional declines through out the list with some large initial blocks swelling the volume.

The decline followed one in the previous session after the list had risen since late Friday. This one reflected technical factors as well as talks by officials against tax cuts, for continuance of the Federal Reserve's tight money policy, and a new serious note in the Middle East.

The gainers could be counted on one hand. They included Allis Chalmers, Pennsylvania Railroad, America Cyanamid.

Question Son in Father's Murder

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Detectives continued questioning a former Army officer today in an effort to learn the events leading to the fatal shooting of his father.

Investigators said Joseph Hunt, 31, a veteran of World War II and the Korean fighting, was so intoxicated Wednesday he could tell them nothing of the slaying.

Hunt was charged formally with murder in the shooting of his father, James Claude Hunt, 62, early Wednesday as the older man was asleep beside another son, Victor, 16. A hunting rifle was used in the killing.

Hunt said he consumed a bottle of whisky during the night "so I could get some sleep."

Detectives said Hunt, a graduate of West Virginia State College, had been treated at Walter Reed Army Hospital several times for a mental disorder caused by shell shock.

U. S. in Another Trough of Despair

THE NEWS, both that coming from outer space and from inner Syria, seems to be throwing the American people into another of those troughs of despair which, along with peaks of optimism, characterize our national attitude towards world affairs.

We seem to find it hard to strike a fair balance and stay on an even emotional keel. With respect to the Russians, for instance, we are either refusing to believe that they can possibly be in the same class with ourselves or we are ready to admit that they are all ten feet tall.

It is hardly necessary to tell ourselves that this is no way for a great people to behave, a people who must carry the main responsibility for preserving freedom among men. This is no way to hold the confidence of our friends. Nor is it the way to win the trust of uncommitted peoples. And it certainly is not the way to cope with the menace of the Soviet Union.

It is not for a country newspaper in Western Pennsylvania to say whether we are or whether we are not where we ought to be in the missile field with respect to the Russians. Obviously, we have no means of knowing.

Nor can we say with the assurance of a Drew Pearson, for instance, that Syria plus Egypt plus Russia is poised to attack Turkey and boom — there goes the whole Middle East and 70 per cent of the world's reserves of oil. We just don't know about that either.

But we think we do know this: that a people who can get the jitters as easily as the American people seem able to get them is not going to be much help to anybody, including themselves.

* * *

ONE OF THE most familiar symptoms of the jitters, one that nearly always shows up when we hit these troughs of despair, is the practice of blaming everything that goes wrong on the Secretary of State. It has been that way as long as we can remember and no matter which party was in power.

To hear some tell it, John Foster Dulles is a stupid fool who, almost by himself, has created both the mess in the Middle East and the assumed Soviet superiority in everything from sputnik down. If only Dulles hadn't been so dumb back there a ways (and usually the critic can name the date and the hour) things would be very different.

Now, of course, second-guessing can be a very useful exercise sometimes. We ought never to hesitate to look back over our shoulders to see where we have been and get a bearing on a new destination.

But second-guessing which is not undertaken with common sense is apt to be mere back-biting. And the most that can do is to flush scapegoats. We venture to suggest that the American people need other things just now more than they need scapegoats.

* * *

OUR BIGGEST need, as we see it, is to put aside our obsession with personal comforts and luxuries, to realize the kind of world we are living in and then to resolve that we will sacrifice everything we have to make this world safe for people who believe in the dignity of the individual human soul.

If that sounds like a mouthful, that's the way we intend it. No nation in all history ever faced greater responsibilities and opportunities than we face today.

What we must do is to settle down to the task, to realize that it is going to be long and costly and that our leaders, including the President and the Secretary of State, cannot do it for us, no matter how clever they are.

Once we come to this kind of resolution, we shall be able to keep our shirts on when things don't go exactly right. Reverses, instead of licking us, will steel us. For we shall be dedicated, as were the men and women who gave us this marvelous country, to principles we know can never perish from the earth so long as there are men to defend them and God is in His heaven, sputnik notwithstanding.

Meg's Egg a Day

CONSIDER the feat of Meg O'Day, the busy little hen that has just completed a year's intensive effort in the nest, laying 362 eggs.

Meg took only three days off during those 12 months, two of them last August when, like as not, it was too hot to ask any little Leghorn to get herself excited about egg-laying. She now holds the world's record for a year's production — 30 dozen plus two. At prevailing prices that represents something like an $18 yield.

With talk about a shorter work week, Meg's feat might offer some sort of a lesson. Had she been influenced by such limits on individual effort she probably would have accepted the five-day week. That alone would have slashed her record by more than eight dozen eggs.

But maybe Meg had heard where all poor layers go. She has shown the hen house set that an egg a day keeps the axe away.

Krushchev Tactics Like Hitler's

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — While the nation's capital is paying homage to the beautiful queen of our leading western ally, the western world is haunted by certain similarities between Khrushchev's tactics in 1957 and Hitler's tactics in 1937. It was in 1937-38 that Hitler started taking over Austria and large hunks of Czechslovakia purely by psychological warfare.

Mr. Pearson

He did it by exhibiting the might of the Nazi army, by showing foreign diplomats motion pictures of Germany's military might, and by subversion inside Austria and Czechoslovakia. He didn't have to fire a single shot.

Today, 20 years later, awe of the Russian ICBM, amazement over the Sputnik, plus savage warnings from the Kremlin are doing the same thing for Khrushchev.

In the past week, the Arab world, much of it previously pro-west, has started swinging into the Soviet orbit. Here are the swings.

Swing No. 1 President Chamoun of Lebanon, hitherto a stanch friend of the United States and no friend of Syria, now is backing Syria and wants to renounce the Eisenhower Doctrine. This reversal came about one week after Khrushchev launched his Sputnik and 48 hours after Khrushchev, growling viciously at Turkey, warned that Turkey would not stay alive more than 24 hours in case of war.

Lebanon leaders, listening to Khrushchev, knew that if the Red Army once obliterated Turkey it would sweep on down into the Arab world. So they jumped to get on the right side of the fence.

Swing No. 2 — Simultaneous with Lebanon's right about-face, King Saud made a statement which just about tore up the Eisenhower Doctrine. Saud had been wined and dined by Eisenhower, receives his total income from American oil companies, has no reason to love Russia. Yet he lined up with Syria, a country which is becoming almost wholly dependent on the Kremlin.

Swing No. 3 — Colonel Nasser has recently been making noises about a friendlier Egyptian policy toward the United States. But one week after the launching of Sputnik and 70 hours after Khrushchev unloosed his savage verbal blast against Turkey, Nasser landed troops in Syria to support Syria against Turkey.

All this fits into a pattern — a pattern all too similar to that which Hitler used to terrorize central Europe shortly before the start of World War II.

Irresponsible Khrushchev

Last month, Allen Dulles, head of Central Intelligence, whose job it is to know what's going on inside Russia, stated publicly that there was ferment inside Russia and that Khrushchev seemed to be in trouble. He expected another political purge.

Other advices I picked up in Europe and the Near East bear this out. Khrushchev not only has the old Kremlin leaders against him, but the bureaucrats. Furthermore, his much-ballyhooed farm program isn't clicking. Reports on crop failures are staggering.

A dictator of Khrushchev's caliber, especially one who drinks 21 martinis before dinner, is capable of doing desperate, dangerous things — if he becomes overconfident, or if he is pushed to the wall.

Russian scientific advances obviously have made Khrushchev cocky. The political situation at home might make him desperate. I don't like to be a pessimist, but where the future of the free world is concerned, it's much better to be ready than late.

Sipping in a Cellar

FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover was relaxing with Vice President Nixon and Gen. Nathan Twining, the Joint Chiefs Chairman, the other day in the basement of Tom Webb, Washington representative of Texas oil millionaire Clint Murchison.

Suddenly the voice of Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus blared over the radio and launched into a scathing attack on Hoover.

The G-man squirmed in his chair, then flushed as Faubus' voice assailed him as a "Gestapo chief."

Nixon and Twining were chuckling at Hoover's discomfort when the radio voice lit into Nixon, who had befriended the Negroes during the civil rights debate.

Twining was still grinning when he, too, came under attack. He was singled out as the nation's top military man, technically in command of Federal troops in Little Rock.

Finally, the voice lashed out again at Hoover.

"I'll bet," the radio boomed, "that Hoover is getting drunk in some cellar right now."

The three dignitaries, who had been sipping cocktails in Webb's basement, looked startled. Then they caught on to the practical joke. The "broadcast" had been faked at Webb's instigation by Gordon McClendon, Texas radio executive, who did a perfect imitation of Governor Faubus.

The Pall Over Britain

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

LONDON — There are things that are not right here in Britain and in their private conversation at least the English do not hesitate to say so.

If you were to put your finger on the shaky pound or the dollar gap or even the painful fiasco of Suez. It would be this: That more than half of the people living in the British Isles either want positively to get away from England or are not sure that they want to remain.

Mr. Drummond

Emigration from Britain has been exceedingly high during the past several years. It is showing no sign of tapering off. The trend is still upward. A conservative official estimate is that at least 200,000 Britons will have left the country this year by Dec. 31.

Many to Canada

Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Rhodesia and Nyasaland and the United States are the countries which most Britons are choosing in which to start a new life and make a new home. Canada lone is taking 100,000 this year.

It is not primarily the size of the emigration which gives Britain its greatest concern. That is bad enough in its consequences. What is more disturbing is that fully 100 times as many people say they want to leave Britain as are able to leave.

That reflects a massive national dissatisfaction with the life and future of Britain — an explosive sentiment which sums up all the hardships, rebuffs and setbacks which the British have experienced since the end of World War II.

Even the present level of emigration from Britain is already bringing the most serious consequences.

Needs Skilled People

The nation is losing what it can least afford to lose, what it most needs to keep — skilled labor, scientists and professional men, all of whom are in short supply.

Remember that Britain is "overemployed" in that jobs are constantly looking for men, not men for jobs.

Mostly it is the younger, not the older, Britons who are leaving the country. This adds a new problem to a nation whose population is aging. It is a problem which will grow more acute if the present emigration trend continues as it shows every sign of doing. Britain's welfare state counts on its younger people to pay a large part of the bill which makes possible an easier life for the older citizens and pensioners. Today it is British youth which is looking to other horizons.

Some will say that if emigration weakens Britain it will strengthen the Commonwealth correspondingly. This seems to me dangerous deception. If there is a seriously weakened Britain, there will be no British Commonwealth as we now know it. The Dominions will go their separate ways. The pound sterling will be a minor currency and one of the great pinions of moral and political strength will be knocked from the free world.

Some will ascribe the desire of so many Britons to leave their homeland as ebullient venturesomeness. For example, when the "News Chronicle" of London printed the British Institute of Public Opinion poll showing that 41 per cent of the British people want to settle in another country and that 12 per cent might wish to but aren't quite sure about it, the paper blithely remarked:

'Blind Buncombe'

"Is this a cause for despair? The answer is an unqualified no. Britain could never have been great without the sense of adventure that impelled men to seek their fortunes overseas."

I cannot escape the conviction that this is blind buncombe. I have talked with Britons who have left their country and with English friends who want to leave and the reason has never varied: The reluctant feeling that Britain no longer holds for them opportunity and reward. True, it takes adventure — or desperation — to break with home ties, but the motivation is to get away from what they find to be an atmosphere of limitation and restriction.

Surely this is a danger signal for British leadership regardless of party. Before it is too late, can Britain make itself anew a land of opportunity for the young in spirit, not merely a land of security for the aged?

Antarctic Spoiled by Invasion of Women

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)— This is the end. The utter and supreme end. Long faces are abloom around the hushed and beardy precincts of the Explorers' Club. Lowell Thomas' eyes are moist. Richard Halliburton's ghost is grim. Marco Polo's bust has a morose stare.

The raw deal they're giving us explorers is enough to gall the underbelly of an iceberg. You know what they're doing to us?

They're letting girls into the Antarctic.

And taking them in by commercial aircraft flight — a stinging blow in itself.

What's a man going to do who has been bragging all these years of what mighty feats he performed mushing across the ice-muted continental wastes dragging Admiral Byrd behind him? When Pan American begins lugging tourists into the Antarctic aboard a plush stratocruiser, it's time for me to fold up my igloo and silently sledge away.

Bragged of Exploits

For years I was known around my office as "that guy who went to the South Pole." I told wondrous stories about the cold that clutched and clung and the ice that gleamed and groaned, the hardships and the hunger, the bergs that crushed ships like match boxes.

The only way to get to Antarctica when I went was to thread your way in a shivery-hulled ship through 600 miles of steel-edged icepack in the frozen Southern Sea—and many times we thought we might stay stuck in the pack forever.

Ever since, I've been making speeches, writing pieces, singing songs about the last frontier of adventure that nobody had trod except me and my buddy Dick Byrd and a few old-timers like Amundsen, Scott, and Shackleton. Goodby to all that. The tourist season is on. They're letting everybody in. Even girls.

First Commercial Flight

It is true that Pan American's first commercial flight this week to Antarctica was a plane on charter to the Navy to take in specialists who will work at scientific stations. But the fact remains that a commercial flight has gone in—and that you can get to the South Pole's front porch by air.

It's the beginning of the end for us braggarts who have been there and assumed nobody else would get there. And, to tell the truth, the whole explorer business is in a bad way. I'm talking about the traditional romantic field of geographical exploring. Where in the world is there a patch of earth yet unexplored? Not many are left, and they're shrinking all the time.

Penguins On Antennas

Maybe they'll be holding the winter Olympics before long on the glazed ice that quilts the continent. Maybe it'll become a summer resort. Maybe penguins will roost at night on TV antennas.

And speaking of penguins, let me show off one final time before my world collapses. You know how us explorers measure the height of a penguin? I thought not. We take it in the "digitigrade position." That means standing on tippy-toe.

Ah, well. The aurora australis is fading. The perfume of two airline hostesses wafts around Mount Erebus. The old Antarctica is gone. It was a nice place to be from, while it lasted.

Nixon, Adams Seem to Disagree on 'Sputnik'

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—Two men who stand just after President Eisenhower in the Republican Party table of organization have been talking about Sputnik this week. What they said seems somehow not to add up.

One is Vice President Richard M. Nixon. He spoke Tuesday night in San Francisco before the International Industrial Development Conference.

The other is Sherman Adams, White House chief of staff, who spoke his piece 24 hours earlier, also in San Francisco, at an Eisenhower birthday dinner sponsored by the United San Francisco Republican Finance Committee.

Policy critics and others have been scolding the Eisenhower administration for what has been regarded as complacency in its reaction to the flight of Sputnik.

Adams Reasonably Content

Adams may not have been complacent about Sputnik in San Francisco. But he talked like a man who was reasonably content, as for instance when he assured the Republican fund raisers that the United States never intended to compete "with any other nation for first place in a Sputnik race."

He gave a low rating to the Sputnik as an instrument or achievement in science and also as a military fact.

"The serving of science," Adam said, "not high score in an outer space basketball game, has been and still is our country's goal."

Democratic critics of the administration's satellite program may be expected now to suggest that high score in an outer space basketball game is not the public's conception of the meaning of a Red Russian Sputnik spinning overhead.

Urges Caution

If Adams gave Sputnik a brush off, Nixon Tuesday night did not. Nixon said:

"Militarily the Soviet Union is not one bit stronger today than it was before the satellite was launched. The free world remains stronger than the Communist world.

"But," Nixon added, "we could make no greater mistake than to brush off this event as a scientific stunt of more significance to the man in the moon than to men on earth.

"We have had a grim and timely reminder of a truth we must never overlook—that the Soviet Union has developed a scientific and industrial capacity of great magnitude.

"If the free world is to survive we cannot rest on our past achievements or our present position of military superiority."

Men on earth may now ponder the question:

Is Sputnik just a high score in outer space basketball or a grim and timely reminder to the people of the United States of new life and fire in the economy of the Soviet Union?

Phil Fumble's Games 'Flu' Away

Only two games were played out of all those selections made by Phil Fumble last week and he broke even on the two, the game on the wrong side of the ledger being the Charleroi-Ambridge tilt which ended in a tie. Some prognosticators don't count ties but Phil is big-hearted and it hurt his average knocking it down to .706 with a 41-17 chart. Hoping to do better and hoping the flu goes away and stays away here's the way he sees them for this week: Redstone at MONESSEN; North Catholic at CHARLEROI; Monongahela at BROWNSVILLE; DONORA at Har-Brack; BELLMAR at Rostraver; CALIFORNIA at Chartiers; PERRYOPOLIS at West Newton; CLAIRTON at Ambridge; WAYNESBURG at Mapletown; Greensburg at NEW KENSINGTON; Washington at UNIONTOWN; CENTERVILLE at Beth Joint; FAIRCHANCE at Point Marion; Munhall at TURTLE CREEK; TRAFFORD at South Huntingdon.

There were many familiar names of famous race horses that you long-time racing fans will remember among the list of nags (oops, horses) admitted to the Thoroughbred Hall of Fame along with Man O'War this week . . . Included were Gallant Fox, triple crown winner in 1930; Twenty Grand 1931, and Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes winner; Blue Larkspur, 1929 Belmont winner; Whitney's Regret, 1915 Derby winner, the only filly ever to win the classic; Grey Lag; Sarazen and Sir Barton, the first horse to win the triple crown, in 1919 . . . Buffalo, N. Y. has been awarded the 1959 Women's International Bowling Congress tourney, defeating Denver, 690 delegates votes to 213 at a recent annual convention.

Donora - Redstone '57 Meeting Off

Redstone and Donora have cancelled their 1957 meeting instead of rescheduling it after flu postponed last week's encounter . . . The game will be chalked up as "no contest" and Donora will host the Blackhawks next season just as if the Dragons had appeared at Redstone this year . . . This one was a case of where both squads were depleted (last week) by the "bug" . . . Probably several other valley games will meet the same fate except for those with championship bearing unless the situation improves rapidly . . . The layoff will enable several Donora injured to repair, especially Assistant Coach Moon Clark's son, Niell, who has been out of action since early in the season with recurrent headaches.

Bobby Gordon, a former Ohioan, who is fighting under the banner of Dr. Charles H. Rosenbloom of Charleroi, will make his debut as a middleweight contender against Bobby Hughes of the Northside (Pittsburgh) as a semi-final wind-up to Promoter Ben Anolik's Enright Theater card next Monday . . . Bob Satterfield and Garvin Sawyer, being trained by former heavyweight champ Jersey Joe Walcott, will meet in the feature bout . . . Neat looking Greyhound facsimiles adorn the refreshment stands at the high school stadium, two leaping 'Hounds on the adult side and one racing (pose) dog on the student side stand. A beautiful metal Greyhound has been mounted on the new high school building but more about that later.

One Loss for Pitt at West Point

Pitt has made four trips to West Point and has come home on the short end of the score only once, back in 1944 under Clark Shaughnessy . . . but who was beating Army then with Blanchard, Davis, Tucker and Co.? . . . And the Pitts were way down . . . Under Jock Sutherland in 1932 and under Red Dawson in 1952 the Panthers marched out of Michie Field with a victory over the Cadets . . . Speaking of Pitt, it's a shame Brownsville's Andy Sepsi has to be hobbled by injuries for he could be of great help to a Pitt running attack . . . Dr. and Mrs. Richard L. Haas, of Dayton, O., recently entertained Carl Crawley and Dan O'Bade, the two former Monessen High athletes now attending Dayton U., with dinner and an evening of "home atmosphere."

President's Golf Play Decisive, Shows Control

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Being a soft-shelled Democrat with Republican leanings, I feel better today about the state of the nation since learning that President Eisenhower is a decisive man of great self control as well as a lucky gambler.

This inside information, which may shake Sputnik right out of its orbit, is not the result of a seance, card or tea leaf readings or a bout with on ouija board.

It comes right from the golf course, in a article by Sports Illustrated, and anybody who ever has tried to strike the pesky pellet will tell you there is no greater assayer of mortal man's character than the 'umbling game.

As everyone knows who has attended a tournament in recent years, your current professional troupe plays with the rapidity of a tortoise suffering from the gout. Not so Ike

Only One Practice Shot

"He takes no time off for preliminary waggling," is the report on Ike's golfing adventures during his recent Newport vacation. "He tries one practice swing, steps up to the ball and hits it, then moves after it with the avidity of a retriever."

This is quite a contrast to pro play. Too many of the fairway fraternity — and even the dubs—study the grain of the green so long it is suspected that they are inspecting the roots.

But as a chronic groaner who rarely throws more than two clubs per round, the thing I admire most about the President's game is his personal control.

"When he makes a good shot he grins and tosses his club, head up, to the caddy," it is reported. "A flubbed shot is likely to elicit a deep groan and a moody stare at the turf before he hands the club quietly back to his caddy."

Is Lucky Gambler

But the part I personally like best is the section which labels him as a lucky gambler. This, old buddies, is a comforting thought in the current international crap game. At Newport he was only going for a dollar Nassau, which means a buck on each nine and another skin on the whole 18 holes. But he played it with all the fervor and determination of a guy shooting the bundle on the $64,000 question.

"The President was a heavy winner," the report goes on, although he'd have to spend more than two weeks at Newport at a dollar Nassau to get a sprained back carrying home the loot.

Redstone Backfield 'Speedy'

Redstone High School, which furnishes the first opposition for the Monessen High Greyhound gridders in three weeks here tomorrow night, boasts a very speedy backfield which will bear watching by the 'Hound defenders.

The 'Hawks are also tough on defense as their games with Johnstown and Brownsville, especially against the Brownies where a 7-6 game went on the wrong side of the ledger, pointed out.

Lining up in that classy backfield are Fred Mazurek, 170-pound fireman' tabbed an excellent ball-handler and passer; speedy halfbacks Roger Daniero, who goes only 135, and Lou DiSimone, 165-pounder, and a 175-pound fullback in Ralph Grooms.

Returning Veterans

Grooms and DeSimone are two of four returning veterans for the 'Hawks who have teamed with first-year men and sophomores. The other veterans are tackles John DeSimone, brother of Lou, who goes around 185, and Gary Meloni, a 215-pounder, heaviest player on the team.

Outside of Meloni, there are too many heavy players on the team with 180-pound Frank Middletown a guard and Joe Grubish, a 175 pound center, sporting the next heaviest "beef load."

On the local scene, Coach Armand Niccolai had his squad fairly well set now after the long siege with the flu which saw the Brownsville and Hempfield games postponed the past two weekends.

Only a couple of players are expected to miss tomorrow night's game due to injuries or the flu with tackle Vince Pascarella still feeling the effects of the latter, Center Mike Chran nursing an injury.

Bill Rigney Gets Two-Year Contract With SF Giants

By HAL WOOD

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP) — He may be whistling in the dark, but Bill Rigney, right on the heels of signing a new two-year contract as manager of the San Francisco Giants, said today that he hoped to get the club into the first division in their initial venture on the Pacific Coast.

"I'm counting on two things," said Rigney, a local boy who will be starting his third season at the helm of the club. "One is that the fan enthusiasm we expect from San Francisco people will be contagious and instill a new spirit into our club, such as happened at Milwaukee; and the other is our hope to land at least one more good, solid ball player.

Willie Mays Stays

Rigney, 38, said he will swap any man on the club with the exception of Willie Mays and Johnny Antonelli.

"And I might even considering trading Johnny away if we could get enough help for him. I consider Johnny the best left-handed hurler in the National League," said Bill.

He also predicted a great year for Mays.

"Willie, who has been around New York all these years, is tickled pink with the idea of playing in San Francisco," said Rigney. "I think he'll move out here. And I'm sure he'll hit better in this ball park. The Polo Grounds was not made for Willie's type of hitting.

"In fact, I think our whole club will be stronger late in the season here than it was in New York. The humidity back there saps the strength of the players. It will be cool at all times here."

Rigney should know. He was born in nearly Alameda, played baseball in the Pacific Coast League for several years and currently lives across the bay in Walnut Creek—about 15 miles from Seals Stadium.

The manager revealed that coach Tommy Heinrich had resigned, but he said he did not know yet what coaches would be retained or hired for the next season.

Farm Players Promise

He was optimistic about some of the young players in the Giants' farm system and some in the service of Uncle Sam.

"We have nine farm clubs and 230 players in the farm system," he said. "And I'm sure we have some good talent on the way up."

He appeared most optimistic about a outfielder Felipe Alou, who played for Springfield, Mass., in the Class A Eastern League last year.

Rostraver, Bellmar In Annual Encounter

Rostraver and Bellmar High Schools are beginning to rival Waynesburg as "rain prophets" for it seems that every year when the time rolls around for the Hurricane - Leopard battle down come the rains.

The same held true this morning, the day of the big "backyard" battle set for Rostraver's Stadium tonight at 8 o'clock.

In addition to being plagued by the thought of a muddy field, both teams must also keep an eye on the sick chart, especially the 'Canes with the Bellmarette schools closed yesterday due to the flu epidemic.

This morning, however, Bellmar coach Bap Manzini, said he found only three front-running players down as sophomore quarterback Ron Coates, who spells off Jerry Petras; Milt Dupree and Dennis Swiantek, all are definitly out for tonight.

Rostraver reports a few lads feeling "rough" but no definite word on any of them missing the game.

Records Mean Nothing

Season records mean nothing when these rivals meet A good example was a couple of years ago when Bellmar was rolling along with a top team and the Leopards had an also ran club. The final score — Rostraver 6, Bellmar o.

No more than a touchdown usually separates the two teams.

This year Rostraver's season record shows losses to Ellsworth, West Newton and California while Bellmar sports a 2-2 record with wins over Centerville and Penn Joint and losses to Perry and German Township. Rostraver had games with Glassport and North Huntingdon postponed while Bellmar cancelled a game with Elizabeth-Forward after the flu stopped the originally-carded tilt.

Manzini named his starters for tonight as follows: Percy Cranford and Steve Stefanik at the ends with Billy Kubin to see action; Ron Schmidt and Gary Grant at the tackles with Bill Barker also in the picture; Burgess and O'Toole at guards with Ken Waugaman also to see considerable action; Bill Mullen at center. The backfield will show Petras at quarterback, Ralph Greco and Larry Rankin at halves and Reggie Kostelac at fullback.

Coach Wade Bender of Rostraver will go with Ralph Snyder and Harry Hall at ends, Walt Karbowsky and Tom Strong at tackles, Allen Siech and Steve Matova at guards, Captain John Bankston at center. Bob Keith will quarterback the team with Gus Allen and David Burkes at halves and Clyde Kuhn at fullback.

LA Rams' Wilson Ground-gaining Leader in NFL

PHILADELPHIA, (UP)—Tommy Wilson of the Los Angeles Rams, unfettered by a college diploma, was a magna cum laude performer among the univeristy alumni in the National Football League today.

Wilson, who bypassed college and won his football experience during a service hitch, was the leading ground gainer in the league after three weeks of play with a net of 350 yards in 53 carries for a 6.6 yard average.

Eddie Le Baron of Washington, the wee one among the NFL huskies, held the No. 1 spot among the league passers.

Le Baron's top position with the passers came from average gain of 10.67 yards for every pass thrown, the league's method of determining the ratings. The Redskins' mighty mite completed 27 of 43 for a 62.8 percentage. He threw four touchdowns while gaining 459 yards and had two interceptions.

Clyde Conner of the Forty-niners led in pass receptions with 16 caught for 218 yards and one touchdown.

Jim Mutscheller of Baltimore leads the scorers with five touchdowns for 30 points, all on pass receptions.

Spider Webb Scores Kayo in Just 50 Seconds

By JOHN DIETRICH

LOUISVILLE (UP) — Middleweight contender Spider Webb will fight at Madison Square Garden next month because of his 50-second knockout over Jackie Labua in their TV bout here at the Kentucky Exposition Center Wednesday night.

The Chicago Spider, who proved a very potent substitute when he dropped New Yorker Jackie with a right to the chin for the full count, will fight in New York on Nov. 1 or 15, according to matchmaker Billy Brown of the International Boxing Club.

Brown said the opponent for seventh - ranked Webb will be ex-champion Gene Fullmer, Neal Rivers or Willie Vaughn.

Webb, weighing 160 pounds to Labua's 157½, substituted Wednesday night for Ralph (Tiger) Jones, who pulled a hip ligament in training last Saturday.

A rainy - night crowd estimated at 1,800 saw 25-year-old Webb register his 13th knockout and 24th victory in 26 fights.

Local Juniors Snap Charleroi's Victory String in 20-13 Win

DiaGiacomo, Bewszka Spark Triumph To Continue Monessen's 'Spoiler' Role

Monessen Junior High School's grid eleven continued in its "spoiler" role last night in snapping a 20-game Charleroi Junior High unbeaten streak with a 20-13 victory over the Little Cougars.

Obviously a little rusty after a three-week layoff, the Little 'Hounds saw Charleroi march to a quick first period touchdown and a 6-0 lead when halfback Billy Zaph sparked a 55-yard drive, finally going over from the one.

His 23-yard dash to the 25, another run of 10 and a personal foul penalty against the locals put the ball on the one from where Zaph cracked over for the initial score.

Near the end of the first period the locals started a 53-yard drive which didn't stop until Fullback Kenny Diagiacomo tallied on a pitch-out around right end. Quarterback Tony Romasco passed to end Ted Darby for a 7-6 lead and the Romascomen were never headed.

Locals Take 14-6 Lead

The locals jumped the count to 14-6 in the third quarter when halfback Damon Reed passed 30 yards to Frezzell as the big play in a drive which finally saw DiGiacomo go over from the one and Romasco keep to tally the extra point and a 14-6 margin.

Charleroi came within striking distance in the fourth period when Quarterback Don Abbott passed to Don Kurty, a halfback, the play covering 40 yards and going all the way for a TD. Abbott ran for the extra point and a 14-13 count.

It was Steve Bewszka, classy Little 'Hound halfback who put the finishing touches on the Little Cougar win streak, however, when he took the ensuing kickoff and ran straight up the middle through the entire Charleroi team, sidestepped the last player to have a shot at him, picked up blockers and went 76 yards to pay dirt.

A pass play failed for the extra point but the locals had a 20-13 lead Charleroi never caught up within the remaining few minutes as the locals held a desperation drive and took over on downs as the clock ran out.

The locals twice before had snapped streaks chalked up by George Chacko's lads, once in 1953 when a 6-0 win turned the trick and a 6-6 tie in 1954 which spoiled another string. In fact, the last team to beat Charleroi's Juniors was the locals in that '53 tilt.

First downs favored Charleroi, by 9-6.

Panthers Rate High; Carr Out

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pitt Panthers are expected to be full strength against Army Saturday with the exception of guard Dick Carr, sidelined Wednesday with the flu.

Carr, who has been especially adept at blocking punts, will be replaced by Danny Wisniewski. The Pitt guard, who blocked punts against Oregon and Nebraska, was the only Panther listed as definitely out of the game. The others, including first string quarterback Bill Kalsden, were reported ready to go.

Army coach Red Blaik said in New York Wednesday that, man for man, the Pitt first team is stronger than Notre Dame in 10 positions. Notre Dame edged Army last Saturday in a close game.

Blaik, however, warmly praised his halfback, Bob Anderson. The Army coach said he hadn't seen any "yearling" since Glenn Davis take over on offense as Anderson is doing.

"I think he's terrific," Blaik said.

Li'l Leaguer

"That's better!"

Pro Hockey Set For Rigid Test In Legal Wringer

NEW YORK, (UP)—Professional hockey is about to be put through the legal wringer and the paying public will get quite an eyeful when all the linen is aired.

The National Hockey League Players' Association, headed by Ted Lindsay of the Chicago Black Hawks, already has filed a three million dollar damage suit against the six NHL clubs.

The association is asking the court to void the standard players' contract. A copy of that contract was obtained during an interview with Hilton N. Mound, counsel for the players, and some of the clauses in it may come as quite a shock to the majority of hockey fans.

Take paragraph 17, for example, which practically sets up the president of the NHL, Clarence Campbell, as the last word in all player - club salary negotiations. Part of that paragraph reads:

"In the event that the player and the club do not agree upon salary to be paid the matter shall be referred to the president of the league, and the parties agree to accept his decision as final."

The hockey players also are contesting paragraph 8 of their contract, which is a so-called "television and right of privacy clause."

That clause prohibits the player from obtaining any revenue from television and radio rights to games, while at the same time granting the owners the right to televise and broadcast games without the players' consent and without payment of compensation for such appearances.

Although the U. S. Supreme court has exempted baseball from the anti-trust laws, it has not done so for hockey.

The hockey players association charges that NHL owners use the mails, telephone, telegraph and other interstate and international communications extensively in the conduct of their business.

Hank Greenberg Out As Cleveland's GM; Al Lopez Successor?

By PATRICK CARRICO

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP) — A "keenly disappointed" Hank Greenberg volunteered today to serve as unofficial advisor to the Cleveland Indians in the selection of his own successor as general manager of the Tribe.

Board Chairman William R. Daley said Greenberg would advise the executive committee of the club's board of directors in finding a new general manager "as quickly as possible." The board voted Wednesday to "notify" Greenberg that his services no longer were required.

Daley had no sooner announced the decision that the deposed front-office boss volunteered to advise the committee selecting his replacement, and also denied rumors of a contemplated shift for the Cleveland franchise.

Greenberg, who held the position since 1950 and watched home gate receipts dwindle from 1,727,464 to 724,000 during his tenure, admitted he was "keenly disappointed."

"But I plan to keep my stock and remain interested in the team's welfare," Greenberg added.

Remains on Board

Greenberg, as second - largest shareholder with an estimated 15-20 per cent of stock, will stay on as one of the Tribe's 13 directors. His tenure as general manager ceases Jan. 1, though his salary, estimated at $60,000 a year, continues through the 1958 campaign.

Insiders were wondering who might succeed Greenberg. Daley himself said the board had "not to my knowledge" received any bids for the post.

These names are mentioned most prominently: Bill Dewitt, Bill Veeck, Al Lopez, Paul Richards, and even Bob Feller, Bucky Harris, and Muddy Ruel.

Possibly the front - runner is Dewitt, who said he has not heard from the Indians, but that he would "be interested" if the job were offered.

Club Not for Sale

Veeck, former general manager of the Tribe, isn't interested in working as a "hired hand," but prefers instead to purchase the club. It is not for sale.

Lopez, manager of the Chicago White Sox who walked out as Indians' field manager after the 1956 season, is an unlikely prospect. He has a renewal on his Chicago contract for next year.

Richards now is manager and general manager of the Baltimore Orioles. It is known that Greenberg tried several times after Lopez's departure to hire Richards. Richards never has completely rejected the idea of coming to Cleveland as general manager.

Winter Olympics Committee Wants 500 Ski Troops

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — The commission for the 1960 winter Olympic Games is negotiating with the Defense Department to have 500 ski troops stationed at Sun Valley, Bob King, new executive director of the games, said today.

King, former aide to Vice President Nixon, said the troops would be needed for avalanche control, patrol, communications, etc.

Meanwhile, work went ahead on the construction of facilities for the games at Squaw Valley. Dirt is being moved as work progresses on the flood control project.

Prentis Hale, president of the commission, revealed that the Bob Sled run had been abandoned on the recommendation of the International Olympic Committee.

"We've had a great deal of criticism for this," said Hale. "But the IOC told us that there had to be 12 teams for the sport to be recognized and indications are that we might have only two, under no circumstances more than eight. So, after spending $50,000 on surveys, we abandoned the project rather than spending $750,000 for construction and maintenance and then having the sport dropped from the agenda."

Hale said that a survey revealed that only U. S and Romania had definitely decided to enter the event. France, England, Sweden, Switzerland and Italy were listed as "probables." Germany was a possibility; Norway and Poland doubtful. All other countries gave a definite "no."

Geneva-Titans in Homecoming Tilt

In their past six games, Geneva has scored only once against the tough Titan eleven, which goes into the game with a 24-game winning streak.

The Covies have a 2-1 record in season play.

PCL Plans to Meet on Future Plans – If Any

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — The Pacific Coast League board of directors will meet at the El Rancho motel in Sacramento on Nov. 1 to discuss plans for the future—if any.

President Leslie O'Connor said today the session would start at 10 a.m. and the main order of business would be to discuss the "Notice of Intentions" to draft the San Francisco and Los Angeles territories by the Giants and the Dodgers.

These two clubs already have taken over the territories, with the Giants pushing out the Seals in San Francisco and the Dodgers the Angels pushing out the Seals in San Francisco and the Dodgers the Angels and Hollywood Stars in Los Angeles.

They also will vote on the sale of the Seals to the Giants, who gave cash and their Minneapolis franchise in the American Association to the Boston Red Sox for the local rights. The deal has to be approved by the PCL.

Almost All Hunting Accidents CAUSED

Many thousands of persons enjoy, and benefit from, time spent hunting wildlife over the wooded mountains and fertile farmlands of Pennsylvania. Unfortunately a comparative few are firearms casualties each year.

As is the case in other sports and industry, almost all of the hunting arms accidents were caused. They could have been prevented. Often they resulted from failure to follow common sense rules of safe gun handling. Some of these incidents involved teenagers who were untrained in gun handling, and who all too often were not accompanied by an adult — the way a wise provision of the Game Law requires. But experienced hunters, too, to whom "no such thing could ever happen" sometimes gets careless and become involved in firearms mishaps.

Actually Game Commission records show that persons of all ages and all degrees of experience become victims of carelessness, greed for game, or excitement, or lack of emotional control when game is sighted.

Each year a surprising percentage of casualties are persons who shoot themselves in falling, pulling a gun by the barrel, crawling through a fence, or doing something silly with an instrument made to kill game but just as lethal to humans.

The oft-cited Ten Commandments of Hunting Safety cover the field well. However, based on the hunter casualty histories in past obeying the following simple rules will preclude the possibility of most hunter gunfire accidents. 1. Know your gun and ammunition, and respect them for what they can do. 2. Never point a gun at yourself or another human. (Horseplay with a firearm is taboo among good hunters.) 3 Definitely identify your target before you pull the trigger. Never guess. "Sound shooting," shooting at a noise or movement in the brush is dangerous. No piece of game is worth risking the life of a human. 4. Always handle every gun(loaded or supposedly empty) as if it were ready to fire, because "empty" guns have caused grief. 5. Keep idle guns unloaded — at home, in the car or in the field.

In other words, good judgment, self control and a sense of values would prevent most hunting accidents.

Such accidents are a needless blemish on the record of a fine sport. The right to pursue wild game is an inherited, recreational outdoor freedom. Through it a vast number of Pennsylvanians derive physical and spiritual benefits far greater than the value of the wild game brought to bag.

Report Bands, Tags

Once again the Game Commission urges hunters in Pennsylvania to cooperate, in the interest of their own sport, by returning information found on identifying markers attached to game birds and animals they bag.

This information is important to the Commission's management program. It helps to determine wildlife population trends and game harvests and survival, as well as other facts needed to ensure the most enjoyable hunting in future.

Thousands of wild game birds, turkeys and ringnecks as well as ducks and geese, are wearing "bracelets". Many rabbits and squirrels and some deer are sporting ear tags. The ear tags particularly may be missed by hunters unless they closely inspect their kills.

Sportsmen who bag a marked bird or animal are requested to report the information on the band or tag to a Game Commission field representative or send the information to the agency's office in Harrisburg. Information on the location and date of kill are also very important.

Conflict of Interest Law Limited in Effects

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Justice Department has ruled that a Republican sponsored "conflict of interest" law passed by the recent Legislature applies only to the executive branch, state authorities and the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

A formal opinion written by Attorney General Thomas D. McBride and deputy Harry J. Rubin said the law would not affect any part of local government, or the judicial and legislative branches on the state level. Also excluded were the Public Utility Commission and the Milk Control Commission.

The law, sponsored by Sen. William Z. Scott (R-Carbon), cleared the 1957 Legislature on its final day, June 20. It goes into effect next Saturday.

The opinion was requested by Secretary of Administration John H. Ferguson because "I've had five or six employes ask me what effect the law would have."

The opinion said the only persons subject to the conflict law were:

—Compensated contractors who perform professional or similar services for the affected agencies.

—Uncompensated advisors to and members of boards in the executive branch of state government, the Turnpike Commission and state authorities.

—Paid officers and employes of the affected agencies.

The opinion further ruled, a state consultant was in conflict of interests only if it involved a contract with a state agency he served and that he recommended either the acceptance of the contract or directed its acceptance.

A state employe would be in conflict if he dealt in any way with a contract in which he had an interest. However, state employes were not prohibited from having an interest in a contract if it involved an agency other than the one they served.

The law also provides that no person may join a state agency if he has an interest in contracts involving the agency, and subjects violators to criminal penalties and loss of office or employment.

The legislation was the outgrowth of a more comprehensive bill put before the lawmakers by administration Democrats. The administration proposal was scrapped by the General Assembly in favor of a more liberal interpretation.

Ex-Detective on Trial Charged With Burglary

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Visiting Judge Swirles L. Himes of Huntingdon County will charge the jury today at the burglary trial of Emery Toth, former McKeesport detective.

The charge was lodged against Toth after police found him in the Watson Standard Paint Store in McKeesport on the morning of April 1, 1956.

Toth said he had found the store door open and was investigating to determine if a burglary was in progress. Nothing was taken from the store. A store official later said he may have left the door open inadvertently.

Toth's trial started Wednesday and all testimony was completed the first day.

Miner Killed

Bricker Denies Boss Rule of Democrats

Howard M. Bricker, Democratic candidate for clerk of courts in Westmoreland County, has returned to his hometown area in Jeannette Wednesday night for a rally and took the occasion to rap the opposition for continued charges of bossism.

Bricker, now being carried on the regular Democratic slate, ran as an independent in the May 21 primary and defeated Raymond Turner, son of Chief County Detective Arthur B. "Buddy" Turner, reputed Democratic court house boss. Bricker is one of several ex-Republican on the Democratic ticket.

Speaking at the Jeannette Eagles, Bricker stated:

"If there is a boss in Westmoreland County, I certainly do not know anything about it. In my 37 years in the Court House the only bosses I had were in the Sheriff's office where we gave service to the public.

"When I ran in the primary I didn't have to seek anyone's permission. I just filed a petition, worked hard and asked my friends to vote for me. It is our friends and the voters who are the real bosses and don't let anyone te'l you different."

Bricker asked Democrats to forget primary differences and support the straight Democratic ticket.

Others on the program were Judge Edward G. Bauer, Judge David H. Weiss, and L. Alexander Sculco, judicial candidates; Earl S. Keim, candidate for district attorney; and Stephen D. Yoney, candidate for coroner.

HOFFA'S DAY IN COURT — James R. Hoffa (right), embattled Teamsters leader, heads for a busy session in New York federal court. # Russia Notified Attack on Turkey Will Mean War with U. S.

By LEE NICHOLS

WASHINGTON (UP)—American officials said today Russia is now on notice that a Russian attack on Turkey will bring the fury of U.S. retaliation against the Soviet Union itself.

There will be no sanctuary for Soviet aggressors as the Chinese Communists had in Korea, they said, if the Russian action is overt. Use of "volunteers," however, probably would not bring any retaliation against Russia, they said

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told a news conference Wednesday he did not think a Mideast war likely. But he said nonetheless this country must be on guard lest Russia attack Turkey.

Later Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko charged that the Turkish general staff, with American "prodding," was planning to attack Communist - backed Syria immediately after Turkey's Oct. 27 elections.

American officials with special knowledge of Mideast affairs said they do not know whether Russia actually is trying to provoke a war between Syria and Turkey. But the officials expressed misgivings about the possible results of the Soviet propaganda campaign.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon said in San Francisco Wednesday that President Eisenhower and Dulles were giving priority attention to working out a peaceful solution to the problem. He said the United States' "great fear" was that a single "miscalculation" could set off a war in the area.

Dulles was asked Wednesday, if in defending Turkey, this country would do so "by attacking the attacker."

"Certainly, if there is an attack on Turkey by the Soviet Union," the secretary replied, "it would not mean a purely defensive operation by the United States with the Soviet Union a privileged sanctuary from which to attack Turkey."

U.S. officials said this does not necessarily mean an all-out American attack on Russia in event of a Russian attack on Turkey. They said there is no way of predicting this country's moves until the specific circumstances are known.

For one thing, they said, a Soviet atack would have to be over aggression to provoke a move against Russia itself. This indicated a Syrian attack on Turkey with the help of Russian military advisers and technicians, or even with Russian "volunteers," probably would not draw U.S. retaliation against Russia.

Leader Speaks To Democrats Of Fayette Co.

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Governor George Leader said Wednesday night a report of a Pennsylvania Economy League study will be distributed to out-of-state manufacturers in an effort to attract new business to Pennsylvania.

Leader spoke at a Fayette County Democratic fund-raising dinner attended by 1350 persons.

The governor expressed confidence the Commonwealth's improved tax position, as demonstrated in the report released Tuesday would "bulwark the program to attract new industry."

He said the "stigma" formerly attached to Pennsylvania in regard to industrial development has been removed by two recent measures—the law, effective Dec. 31, which permits manufacturers' exemption from the tax on capital stock, and the repeal of the Allegheny County machinery tax.

The Duke of Wellington and Napoleon are said never to have met personally although they once were within a quarter of a mile of each other during the battle of Waterloo.

GOP Leader Says Tax Cut Still Necessary

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Republican congressional leader said today taxes must be reduced next year despite additional defense spending which he said apparently will be necessary.

The assertion came from Rep. Richard M. Simpson (Pa.), a high-ranking minority member of the House Ways and Means Committee, which initiates all tax legislation.

His assertion that a tax cut is "mandatory" next year came less than 48 hours after Vice President Richard M. Nixon threw cold water on hopes for early tax relief.

Nixon said Monday that with Russia's satellite circling the earth the nation must regard its military strength as a matter of far greater importance than the "understandable desire" for tax relief.

Simpson expressed his views in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce in Chicago. A summary of his remarks was released here in advance.

"We can and must cut taxes despite additional spending that will apparently be necessary in the Defense Department," Simpson said.

Any boost in defense spending can be offset by reduced spending on other federal agencies not linked with the defense effort, he said and this, would prevent any overall increase in spending.

The Ways and Means Committee will start tax hearings Jan. 7, he said, and he will "insist" that a major tax reduction be considered at the hearings.

Committee Chairman Jere Cooper (D-Tenn.) has expressed hope the hearings will lead to some tax relief.

Simpson's remarks indicated that even if the Eisenhower administration strongly opposes tax relief he will push for a tax cut and try to pin blame on the Democratic Congress if no relief is forthcoming.

Naked Pledge In Laundry Bag At Sorority

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP)—A University of Nebraska fraternity has been stripped of its social privileges because several members delivered a laundry bag to a sorority house. There was a naked fraternity pledge inside.

The incident was bared Wednesday but a school secrecy lid covered the story's details much better, apparently, than the pledge was covered when squealing coeds opened the bag.

According to one report, the hapless youth was seized by his future fraternity brothers, tied up, stripped of his clothes, and put in the laundry bag which was then tied to the door of the sorority house. The incident happened last week.

The co-eds, so the report goes, reacted with swift, if misdirected justice. They gave the unfortunate pledge a pummelling, then sent him packing in a pair of girl's slacks.

The incident became known when university officials said they had turned the matter over to the Inter - Fraternity Council.

The IFC's decision bars the fraternity, identified as the local chapter of theta chi, from participating in University Social events.

University officials, who regarded the prank as something less than amusing, said it was not a part of "Hell Week" hazing which takes place in a couple of months. But they were reluctant to bare any more details.

Neither univeristy nor fraternity officials would identify the students involved. The coeds weren't talking either.

Football Team Aids Mate Who Broke His Leg

NUFFLINTOWN, Pa. (UP)—The entire football team of Juniata High School has turned to farming to help out teammate Don Goshorn, who was injured in a game two weeks ago.

When Goshorn's leg was broken in a game between the Juniata team and Susquenita two weeks ago, his widowed mother, Mrs. R. I. Goshorn, was left without help on their farm.

So the rest of the team decided to take over Don's duties, which involved milking the cows, caring for the livestock, picking apples, cribbing corn, and chopping wood

Two of the boys have taken up residence at the house to do the milking, pointing out that production falls off if too many persons start milking the cows.

Many of the boys are veteran farmers, like Don's replacement at center, Jake Kauffman, who said: "Man, this is nothing new to me, I've done it all my life."

Others, like city boy Dale Smith, the team's star halfback, took the attitude "I don't know much about farming, but I'm willing to learn." Quarterback Fred Powell, taking over the wood chopping business Don used to run, said "I'm not from a farm, but I can still cut wood."

Your Food Problem—

Omelet Made with Eggs and Noodles

Edith Barber

Another one of those mystery food weeks! There just doesn't seem to be any particular reason for devoting next week to a national celebration of macaroni — but that's the way it is.

Macaroni is a cover-all term — as spaghetti and noodles are classed with the products we know as macaroni. Most of us are better acquainted with spaghetti than we are with the other members of the "pasta" family, the general term the Italians use. Tomato sauce is usually the choice with spaghetti. In addition, there will almost invariably be grated cheese.

It seems as if the favorite macaroni recipe is the combination of the cooked product with a creamy sauce highly flavored with cheese, or with sliced cheese used as a topping. Noodles, which because of the egg content have more flavor of their own, are often buttered liberally or, perhaps dressed with sliced browned almonds in addition. Poppy seeds add a touch of color and a little bit of flavoring. Sesame seeds are also good for this type of dish.

Cooked noodles combined with the usual ingredients for a plain omelet add both heartiness and flavor. Men particularly like this type of omelet spread with a tart jelly of a bright color. You may like to select green noodles and add minced parsley as well, or to use sprigs of this herb as a garnish. By the way, a garnish of this type is really supposed to be eaten.

DAD WILL GO FOR AN OMELET like this, combined with cooked noodles and spread lavishly with a tart jelly. Just the makings for a hearty fall breakfast.

NOODLE JELLY OMELET

1 cup medium egg noodles
4 eggs, well beaten
½ teaspoons melted butter
2 tablespoons melted butter
Crab apple jelly, or other tart jelly

Cook noodles according to directions on package. Drain, combine eggs, salt and noodles and mix well. Melt butter, add egg mixture and shake over low heat until set. Continue cooking until bottom is lightly brown. Spread with jelly. Fold and turn out on serving platter. Yield: 4 servings.

SPECIAL NOODLES

1 8-ounce package noodles
¼ cup butter
¼ cup sliced blanched almonds
2 teaspoons poppy or sesame seeds

Cook noodles as directed on package. Rinse and drain. Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add almonds and cook over low heat until nuts are slightly browned. Add remaining butter and sprinkle with poppy or sesame seeds. Yield: 6 servings.

Prize-winning Cookie Recipe

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UP) Here is the Old World recipe with a New World twist that won $25,000 for Mrs. Gerda D. Roderer of Berkeley, Calif., in Pillsbury's national baking contest:

Accordion treats

Accordion treats
¾ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
2 unbeaten eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups sifted all purpose flour.

Cream butter. Gradually add sugar, creaming well. Blend in eggs, vanilla and salt; blat well. Gradually add flour; mixing thoroughly. Fold lengthwise one yard of foil to give double thickness, then fold into one-inch accordion pleats. Place on baking sheet.

Drop dough by rounded teaspoonfulls into folds (dough spreads during baking). Bake in slow oven (325 degrees) 25 to 30 minutes until golden brown. Cool 10 minutes; remove cookies and re-use foil. If desired, sprinkle cookies with confectioners' sugar or frost with icing. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

Tasty Recipes

CHICKEN-EGG GRAVY

3 tablespoons flour
2 cups chicken stock
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 hard-cooked eggs

Combine flour with chicken stock in saucepan. Add garlic salt and pepper. Cook until thickened slightly. Chop 2 of the hard-cooked eggs and add to gravy. Pour into gravy dish and garnish with sliced hard-cooked egg. Yield: about 1½ cups.

Fried Chicken Is Claimed a Specialty

Practically every section of this country prides itself on its good fried chicken. This is claimed as a specialty. Sometimes it is coated with crumbs and fried in deep fat but, more often, the cut chicken is sauteed until well browned, by which time it should be tender and juicy.

Often cream gravy, perhaps accompanied by split hot biscuits, is offered. A Western receipe, however, calls for highly seasoned rice combined with canned whole kernel corn to serve with the chicken. The whole kernel corn has almost as good a flavor as fresh corn, and has become more popular than the cream style which was previously used so much.

In this Western chicken recipe, the rice is browned with the onion before water and other seasonings are added. The rice is not overcooked, but after it has been removed from the heat, it is covered and allowed to stand for at least ten minutes — during which time the water is absorbed. The rice turns out fluffy and dry as it should be.

This is a good recipe to use this month, which is being celebrated as Rice Festival. However, instead of rice, noodles prepared in the same fashion may be used. No additional vegetable will be needed, although string beans will not be scorned. A salad is a natural accompaniment for a meat of this sort.

WESTERN CHICKEN

1 frying chicken (2½ to 3½ pounds), cut in pieces
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup rice
½ cup chopped onions
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1-3 teaspoon pepper
2 cups (16-ounce can) whole kernel corn drained

Season chicken pieces with salt and pepper. Dust with flour, and fry until tender. Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Add rice and onions and cook until rice is brown. Add green pepper, water, salt and pepper and bring to boil. Cover and cook over low heat 14 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in corn. Cover and let stand for at least 10 minutes. Serve with chicken. Yield: 6 servings.

Turks not Scared by Threats

By RUSSELL JONES

ANKARA, Turkey (UP)—Soviet threats are a fact of life every Turk learns to live with.

Communist Party Leader Nikita Khrushchev's recent rocket-rattling remarks received less attention here than they did in the United States.

And the news of the dispatch of Egyptian troops to Syria drew from Turkish Defense Minister Shemi Ergin the calm statement that Turkey had followed Syrian developments "step by step" and will take all precautions to defend the frontier.

"Any aggressive action will be broken into pieces by Turkey's strong army," he said. "To busy oneself with Turkey is to play with fire."

Building More Interesting

The press and public here are far more interested in the upcoming elections Oct. 27 and in Premier Adnan Menderes' construction program. Russians—whether imperial or Communist—have been threatening Turkey throughout history, but it isn't every day a country gets a facelifting.

The building program has made a large part of Ankara look like a construction camp and brought wholesale elimination of slums almost overnight.

The program may determine the election outcome with the countryside, benefitting from new highways, voting for Menderes while cities, upset by the housing shortage caused by slum clearance are likely to back the opposition.

This is also the 10th anniversary of American-Turkish cooperation and the most popular public show in years is the "ten years of Turkish development" exhibit in the city's Genclik Park. It outlines progress since American aid started—and, refreshingly, gives the United States full credit for $1,750,000,000 worth of assistance.

Army Ready Nevertheless

But preoccupation with other subjects doesn't mean Turks have forgotten either Russia or Syria. A Turkish army of more than 250,000 is ready to take on the Russians—or anybody else.

"It might be the old story of a good little man against a good big man if the Turks fought the Russians," one observer said. "But that doesn't mean the Turks wouldn't try it. They have taken on the Russians too many times in the past to be scared by the idea of rockets."

The Syrians are another question. While all sources say the only military activity in south Turkey is the regular autumn maneuvers, it doesn't mean the Turks wouldn't like an excuse to teach the Syrians a lesson.

The Turks have contempt for the Syrians and figure they could take Damascus in 24 hours—exactly the time Khrushchev said Turkey would last against Russia.

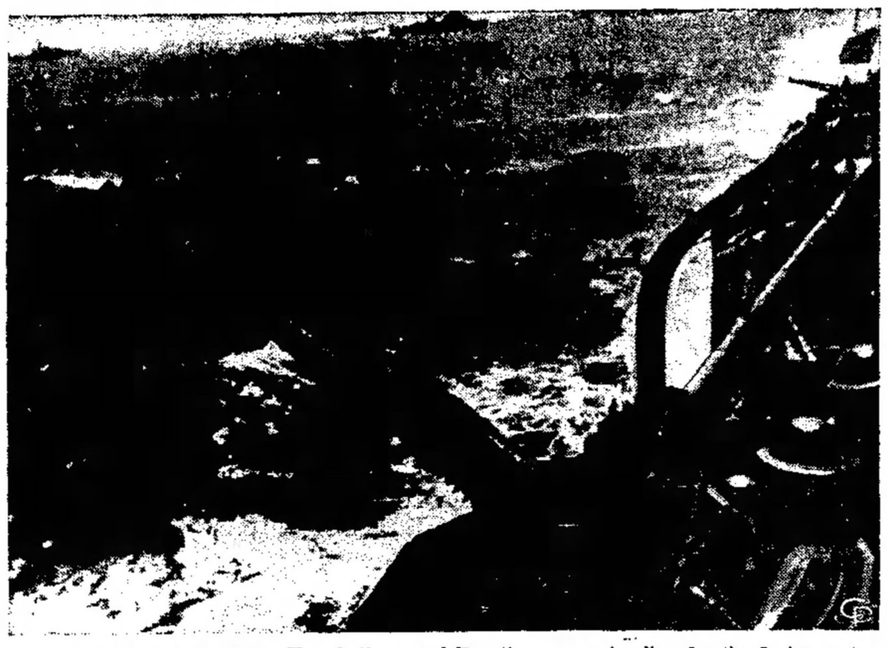
Restraints imposed by NATO and the Baghdad pacts make any Turkish move highly unlikely, but observers believe Syrian attempts to harass the Turkish border will be met by the strongest local action.

"Maybe we can't do what we would like but we certainly can guard our borders against that rabble," said a man in a bar.

Although there are more than 8,000 Americans here, most of them military, they are relatively inconspicuous. And with the chronic shortage of hard currency, American goods are far less evident in the stores than in other countries of this area—including Syria.

While taxicabs in Lebanon, Syria and Jordan are the latest American models with the high fins, the Turks drive old jalopies. They are short on consumer goods, don't even have coffee and have just been permitted to start heating homes with coal although it has been cool.

The Turks are tightening their belts in grim determination to reach the point where they are self-sufficient.



CONVOY MOVING TO SYRIA—Here is the armed Egyptian convoy heading for the Syrian port of Latakia. It carried Egyptian army units to bolster Syria. (International Radiophoto)

A LOT OF LAW

CHICAGO (UP)—Two suburban policemen have the answer to teen-age "Rumbles"—they make a rumble of their own for law and order. Patrolman Russell Hinds is 6 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 270 pounds, and Sergeant Joseph Jost is 6 feet 3½ inches, weighs 348.

Faye Emerson Ends Seven-year Marriage

NEW YORK (UP)—Actress Faye Emerson and bandleader Skitch Henderson have written finis to their seven - year marriage.

A spokesman for the couple said they "reluctantly came to the conclusion to separate" yesterday after trying for a year to patch up their differences. He said they arrived at an amicable property settlement.

Miss Emerson and Henderson were married Dec. 12, 1950, in Cuernavaca, Mexico, where the actress received a divorce 11 months earlier from Elliott Roosevelt, son of the late president. Her first marriage, to William Crawford, a San Diego auto salesman, also ended in divorce.

A CIGAR IS ALL

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar, Alfred Ludvigsen, the governor's legislative counsel, said a new lobby-control law won't permit lobbyists to go any further than offering legislators "a good cigar."

State Troopers Are Transferred

Seven Pennsylvania state police trooper transfers in Troop A, District 1, Greensburg, were announced today by Capt. J. F. Maroney, commanding, as follows:

Trooper Stephen Pelesky from Greensburg to New Kensington; Trooper Thomas Berryhill from Greensburg to Ebensburg; Trooper Leonard E. Nelson from Greensburg to Ebensburg; Trooper Robert E. Myers from Greensburg to New Kensington; Trooper Cosmus V. Clendenin from Ebensburg to New Kensington; Trooper Leonard G. Washington from Ebensburg to New Kensington; and Trooper Merl R. Shetler from New Kensington to Greensburg.

TWICE IN A ROW

GIDDINGS, Tex. (UP)— The Giddings Junior Livestock show and rodeo was called off today because of nearly 10 inches of rain since Sunday. It was cancelled last year because of a severe drought.

U. S. in Trouble with Korea and Formosa Over GI's

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP) — The United States is facing trouble in the two nations that should be its best friends in Asia — Nationalist China and Korea.

The trouble centers around American military forces stationed in the two countries and the local populations.

The U.S. has not given a Status of Forces Agreement to either the Nationalist Chinese on Formosa or to the Republic of Korea government.

People in both countries feel this is almost a slap in the face, —particularly since the U S has signed such an agreement with Japan, which was once its enemy.

The key point in the Status of Forces Agreement, so far as the man in the street is concerned, is the right to try U S military personnel for crimes committed while off duty.

American officials deny it publicly, but it is a known fact that they have very little faith in the Chinese and Korean judicial systems, although they do respect the Japanese courts.

Different With Japan

This is one of the main reasons why the U S balks at signing the same type of status of forces agreement with the Nationalist Chinese and Koreans that it has with Japan.

In South Korea, friction between the G I.s and Koreans has been building up steadily for several years. The main trouble now is over the number of Koreans killed by American guards protecting installations and supplies from pilferage.

But the irritation goes much deeper there, where American troops almost take on the appearance of occupation forces in the minds of many Koreans.

Despite the fact that President Syngman Rhee says he wants U S troops there, despite the hospitals, schools and churches that G I's have paid for, and despite the money they spend, many observers feel that the Koreans are getting tired of seeing their streets full of American military men.

Talking to some Korean officials there is the unmistakable impression that they feel the U S treats them like school children.

Tells Them What To Do

"You give us a large allowance, but you make us do everything you say," one Korean official told me last year.

That same feeling of being treated like a second class ally also prevails among Chinese here on Formosa.

The trouble between G I.'s and Chinese is generally less pronounced here than in Korea. But it exploded in May of this year with a violence so far unmatched in Korea when Chinese mobs wrecked the American Embassy.

The Taipei riots came after a U.S. Army court martial acquitted a G I who claimed self-defense in killing a Chinese.

There have been more than a score of incidents since then, including auto accidents in which Americans have killed Chinese.

The exact number of incidents has not been made public, however, because U S military authorities have changed their previous policy of announcing such incidents.

Wholesale Food Prices Decline

NEW YORK (UP)—Wholesale food prices as measured by the Dun & Bradstreet Index for Oct 15 dropped one cent to a five-month low of $6 11, the agency reported today.

The current price compares with $6 12 a week earlier and $6 01 in the comparable 1956 week. Percentagewise, the indicator is 1 7 per cent above a year ago.

This week's price was the lowest recorded since May 21 when it stood at $6 09, D&B said. The index hit its 1957 low of $6 08 on May 14.

Once-pretty Socialite Dies As Drunkard

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — The wasted body of a once-beautiful socialite was found sprawled in a litter of gin bottles in her $180-a-month Hollywood Hills home, police reported today.

Police said Evelyn McKaig, member of a Pittsburgh industrial family, "must have lived and died on alcohol. She was only 37, but she looked 60." Her death was listed as natural pending an autopsy.

A maid, Mrs Nealy Ward, found the body when she reported for work Tuesday.

"She started drinking after she got osteomyelitis several years ago—vodka and gin and brandy, mostly," Mrs Ward told officers.

Miss McKaig is survived by a son, Marshall, 16, and a daughter, Robin, 17, who are reported living with their father, Marshall Gish, in Wilmette, Ill. Her second husband was believed to be Wally Dant, of Pittsburgh.

Also surviving is a brother, Clement McKaig, of Sausalito, Calif., who reportedly inherited one million dollars last year.

---

Nine Negro students, whom troops inside the school are protecting, arrived, as usual, today in an Army station wagon escorted by National Guardsmen in two jeeps.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, John Ursini, who died 19 years ago today, October 17, 1938.
How silently and sweetly you sleep,
The angels must have known
That you were meant for them
And claimed you as their own.
Did you feel our lonely ache?
Did you hear us mourn and cry?
Perhaps you did because we know
It's just farewell and not goodbye.
Sadly missed by Mother, Brothers and Sisters.

FLU IN HAITI

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UP) President-elect Francois Duvalier, who will be inaugurated next Tuesday, canceled a speech at Gonaive today because of the Asian flu. His aides said the illness would not affect the inauguration. Duvalier's confinement coincided with the arrival in Port Au Prince of Dominican Republic dignitaries who yesterday awarded military junta chief Gen. Antonio Kebreau the Great Cross of Duarte Sanchez Y. Mella, the highest Dominican decoration.

Larson Replaced as U. S. Information Boss

WASHINGTON (UP) — Arthur Larson, one of the bright young men of the Republican Party, is being replaced as Chief of the U.S. Information Agency in an apparent move to placate congressional budget cutters.

Larson's shift to a new post was disclosed at a time when the USIA is faced with one of its greatest challenges in countering the tremendous propaganda victory scored by Russia in announcing its Sputnik and other scientific advances.

The White House announced Wednesday that Larson, whose agency's funds were severely cut last year after a bitter congressional budget battle, will be replaced by George V. Allen, one of the State Department's top trouble shooters.

Gets New Job

Sometimes called the philosopher of "Modern Republicanism," Larson will become a special assistant to the President. He will be in charge of "special projects in international affairs relating to United States propaganda efforts."

Allen, a career diplomat and presently U.S. ambassador to Greece, headed the original "Voice of America" radio project that later was expanded into the USIA.

His appointment, which is subject to Senate approval, was hailed by Republicans on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave no reason for the switch Wednesday. He refused to say if it was connected with the Soviet space success.

Hagerty did not say when the two men will assume their new jobs.

Larson, regarded as one of the GOP's foremost "eggheads," came to the USIA last December. He soon became embroiled in a fight with an economy - minded Congress over his budget for the current year.

Made Hefty Cut

Congress whacked one-third off USIA's 144 million dollar request. The USIA received $96,200,000 to carry out propaganda activities overseas for the current year.

Informed sources said the administration felt Larson was "too controversial" to secure adequate funds for the USIA next year. The 54-year-old Allen is a career diplomat who served under both Republican and Democratic administrations.

He established a notable record while serving in such key spots as ambassador to India, and to Iran during the 1946 cold war crisis over Azerbaijan. He later became assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern, South Asian and African Affairs.

Columbus Cops Net Big Fish In Traffic Check

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP)—Cruisermen Donald Mayes and Richard Holycross counted a good day's haul arresting motorists, including a former mayor, who made illegal left turns at an intersection.

While writing out a ticket for an unidentified driver, a second motorist made the wrong turn.

Holycross flagged him down and found it was Common Pleas Judge and former Mayor Myron B. Gessaman.

Along came a third violator who just waved at the officers and kept on going. Giving chase, the two police arrested Sheriff Stacy Hall (a former policeman) who said he was just returning what he thought was a friendly greeting when he waved.

Riding with Hall were Clerk of Courts Roy King and Prosecutor Samuel Devine.

Total proceeds to the city from fines: $30.

BURKE IN KOREA

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Adm. Arleigh Burke, U.S. Navy Chief of Operations, began talks today with officials of the Republic of Korea and the United Nations Command. Burke arrived at Kimpo Airfield last night and was met by Gen. George H. Decker, commander of the U. N. Command, and high Korean officials.

Low Sugar In Blood Is Harmful

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

If you are arrested frequently for traffic violations, if you clash often with authorities, you may be suffering from hypoglycemia.

Hypoglycemia is the opposite condition of diabetes. In this disease, there's a drop in the blood sugar with sometimes alarming results.

While most of our organs can mobilize glycogen reserves in an emergency to produce their own glucose, the brain cannot. It has to rely entirely upon blood sugar.

A drop in your blood sugar means a cut in the amount that reaches the brain. Since glucose is the chief supplier of oxygen, this means a decreased supply of oxygen is sent to the brain.

Thus, in hypoglycemia, the brain is deprived of its fuel and main source of energy. I think you can see how this can lead to difficulty, maybe to jail or the psychopathic ward.

If the blood sugar level is cut by one-third, you are apt to become dull, be unable to concentrate and have difficulty making decisions.

A drop of one-half means serious trouble.

You probably will become restless, lose most of your will power and become confused about time and situations. Should the level drop even further, the result might be stupor or semi-stupor, coma, hysteria, delirium and schizophrenic symptoms.

Sometimes persons suffering from hypoglycemia resort to crime. Theft, violence, petty larceny, particularly in seeking food, especially sweets, often can be traced to this disease.

Repeated traffic violations followed by clashes with police officers also sometimes can be blamed on hypoglycemia.

In fact, the disease has been accepted by courts as a mitigating circumstance in some cases.

Question and Answer

S. W. What causes an excessive amount of saliva?

Answer: The normal amount of saliva varies in different individuals.

A great increase occurs occasionally in nervous diseases, allergies, acute infections, infections of the mouth, especially from the use of certain drugs as mercury and iodine compounds and tobacco.

Some believe that constant swallowing of saliva may become a habit in nervous people. It may also be due to conditions affecting the salivary glands directly, such as, possibly, a stone in the salivary gland.

Jackie Coogan Grooms Daughter for Movies

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Jackie Coogan, first kid star of the movies, is grooming his 4-year-old daughter, Leslie, to follow in his footsteps to moppet stardom.

"I was just four years old when I started my first picture," Coogan grinned. "It was 'The Kid' with Charlie Chaplin back in 1918, and it launched the biggest child actor in history."

Coogan, bald now and as homely as a rhinoceros, earned 6½ million dollars before he was voting age. But by the time various factions were through cutting up his fortune, Jackie ended up with a pittance.

Considering his financial disasters, his plunge to obscurity and the heartaches of growing up in the public eye, why does he want Leslie to experience stardom?

"It would be a great gratification for me," Jackie said. "I take a lot of pride in her.

Knows Perils of Stars

"There hasn't been a real big child star since Shirley Temple and I think the public is ready for one. Besides, I know all the pitfalls of being a kid star, believe me, and I will see that she avoids them.

"For instance, she can't lose any money she earns. My law, 'The Coogan Law,' would protect her from all the financial troubles I went through."

Jackie whipped out his wallet and produced a picture of Leslie. She's a blue-eyed, blonde cutey who bears a close resemblance to Jackie when he was that age.

"So far Leslie hasn't had any professional experience," Jackie said. "But I'm teaching her things gradually — how to walk, turn, lower her eyes — all the things I learned as a kid. She dances, too.

Worked Up Gag

"We've already worked up a little gag. I ask her what her name is and she says, 'Leslie Coogan.' I ask her what Mommy's name is and she says, 'Dodie Coogan.' Then I ask her what my name is and she answers, 'Jackie Cooper.' We all get a kick from that."

Jackie has two other offsprings, Anthony, 16, and Joan, 10. Neither is interested in an acting career.

The heavy-set actor finds character roles in television and movies. His latest is a supporting role in "The Joker's Wild."

Actress Wants To Keep Child

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actress Marie Wilson promised tearfully today to fight with all her might to keep a three-month-old baby girl she and her husband adopted from an unwed mother three days after birth.

The actress and her husband, TV producer Bob Fallon, were served with a writ Tuesday ordering them to appear in Superior Court Monday to show cause why they should not give up custody of the infant to the baby's atractive, 21-year-old mother.

Miss Wilson explained that she and Fallon had paid for the young woman's medical expenses and gave her $75 a month in expense money during her pregnancy.

The actress said the child's mother, identified by the county adoption bureau as Linda Leabow, had signed an agreement consenting to the adoption

World of TV—

MikeTodd's Big Party Tonight

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—Mike Todd, a producer who once made a movie and can't seem to forget it, has set up temporary residence for tonight in Madison Square Garden to celebrate the movie's first birthday.

If you are interested in seeing Mike Todd's party, Mike Todd, six mummers bands and a 100-piece orchestra, Mike Todd's wife, Sir Cedric Hardwicke riding an elephant, some cowboys and bagpipers, a 20-foot "Oscar" made of chrysanthemums, film clips from Mike Todd's movie, a short film telling how Mike Todd made his movie, 18,000 people eating 10,000 pints of Mike Todd's ice cream and Mike Todd's birthday cake ("It's 14 feet high and 30 feet at the bottom and Gad! how will Liz Taylor ever be able to cut it?" cries the press agent in press agent-type agony), you can catch it on CBS-TV.

NBC-TV will present "Green Pastures," which is only a spectacular.

CBS-TV has dubbed its extravaganza, "Around the World in 90 Minutes," a split genuflection to the title of Todd's movie and the title of the show displaced tonight, "Playhouse 90."

CBS Sends First Team

The network is throwing its first team into the brawl — Walter Cronkite, Bill Leonard and Jim McKay, aided by 11 cameras and a technical crew of 48, will call the play-by-play from the Garden. Quentin Reynolds will handle the wrap-up from a studio.

Todd is giving away so many gifts to his guests (he got them cuffo) that he'll have to store many of them in a parking lot near the Garden. CBS-TV will keep a camera in the parking lot all evening, which certainly should mark some sort of first for television.

Tons Of Gifts

Among the gifts the camera will scan: 40 Siamese cats from the King of Thailand, three foreign cars, three domestic cars, an airplane (complete with flying lessons), 30 ivory backscratchers, a rickshaw, a couple of motor scooters and 50 elephant bells.

Inside the Garden, Todd will trot out a pageant of floats, clowns, horses and stuff like that there. Armfuls of celebrities will be on hand who won't entertain, but may grunt prettily into the camera. In fact, a current gag has it that Todd may introduce Ed Sullivan from HIS audience.

And Ordinary People

The celebrity guests along with 1000 ordinary slobs (picked by lot by movie exhibitors in some 60 cities) will be force-fed 1000 pizza pies, 300 pounds of salami, 15,000 hot dogs, several hogsheads of coffee, 500 gallons of cider and several thousand gallons of champagne. Presumably, guests will be required to furnish their own bicarbonate of soda.

"We're getting everything free—the food, the drink, the gifts. Everybody wants to get into the act," reports an ecstatic Todd associate. "CBS is even paying us for the right to televise the event."

For Todd, therefore, the evening stacks up as a triumph in advance. He'll get 90 minutes to plug his movie before a nationwide TV audience. And he'll get paid for it. He'll also get a chance to plug his upcoming movie, "Don Quixote."

All this and Elizabeth Taylor, too.

Pershing Renews His Challenge to Debate

Avra N. Pershing Jr., one of three Republican nominees for judge of Westmoreland County common pleas court, yesterday renewed a GOP challenge to Democratic judge nominees for a public debate on the issues of the N. v. 5 general election campaign

"The Democrats have cleverly evaded the real issues. They have talked about almost everything else — maybe the Russian satellite will be next," he told a party rally in Scottdale.

Democrats have turned down Pershing's debate invitation.

Willis E. Topper, another Republican judgeship nominee, then pointed out dangers of one-party rule or "one-man rule of the two-party system" and said such control leads to poor government and, eventually, to usurpation of the peoples' rights.

"In the interest of fair play and good government both political parties should be represented on the courts," Topper said. "We are not now represented, all the judges are Democrats."

He called attention of voters to the fact that the judges elected Nov. 5 will serve for 10 years, declaring "it will be a long time before any change can be made The time to make the change is now."

Robert H Rial, the first Republican nominee for judge introduced, set a tone of optimism for the meeting by reporting that in many parts of Westmoreland more and more people "are talking about voting the straight Republican ticket"

"Almost everywhere I go," Rial said, "it is not now a question of which Republicans voters will cast their ballots for — they are talking about voting for the entire ticket. It must be evidence of their disgust with the way the Democrats are running things from Greensburg."

Rial said that Judge David H Weiss, a Democratic nominee, called him and his fellow judicial candidates "all apples from the same tree — the Republican machine" He added that Weiss failed to mention that all of the Democratic candidates for judge and the Democratic nominee for district attorney were once Republicans.

Wayne R. Donahue, Republican candidate for district attorney recalled that in 1945 a Republican candidate for district attorney "charged that the office was operated under the domination of the then, and now, chief of county detectives Arthur B. "Buddy" Turner). He said that Rial made the same charge when he ran for district attorney in 1953

"The chief of county detectives was the same person now holding this office — the only difference is that he had become more powerful and more omnipotent," Donahue said "This man is one of a small group who have assumed control of patronage and all the other powers that go with control of this kind." The candidate called for election of a district attorney "willing to sacrifice personal gain in order that the electorate may have orderly, representative and efficient government."

Bishop Sheen Will Return to Television

NEW YORK (UP)—Bishop Fulton Sheen will return to television this season via filmed re-runs of past programs

The Society for the Propagation of the Faith, which receives all revenues from Sheen's TV shows, will select 26 of his past programs for syndication to stations throughout the country. The re-runs will be called "The Best of Bishop Sheen"

Strong competition from CBS-TV's "I Love Lucy" and NBC-TV's "Twenty-One" was believed largely responsible for the demise of the Sheen series, which began in 1952 on the Dumont network and ended last April.

Ex-Treasury Head Warns Against More Spending

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP)—Former Treasury Secretary George H Humphrey Wednesday night urged caution in any spending programs designed to outdo the Russian satellite.

"The real danger of the Sputnik," he said, "is that some too eager people may now demand hasty and sensational action, regardless of cost and relative merit, in an attempt to surpass what they have done"

Humphrey said he would not belittle Russian scientific progress and power, but he felt Americans "must never lose our sense of balance and proportion."

"Let us always keep in proper perspective the real objective we are trying to preserve," he said, adding that this was individual freedom.

Humphrey said that although this country must be prepared, "military strength requires the maintenance of economic strength"

The Cleveland industrialist said a failing economy "would mean the loss of our freedom with the enemy never firing a shot."

Humphrey said America and other countries face "a great threat" in inflation. He said the "greatest spur to the pressures of inflation is excessive government spending"

Point Marion Banker to Take Stand Today

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Milo K. Ruse, former president of the First National Bank of Point Marion, Fayette County, was set to take the stand today at his Federal Court trial for alleged income tax evasion.

Ruse, 56, of Bobtown, Greene County, is on trial before a jury of six men and six women on a charge of evading $6,401 in income taxes in 1950 and 1951. Judge Herbert P. Sorg is presiding.

Special revenue agent William Ankram testified Wednesday, under questioning by Asst U.S. Atty. Hubert I. Teitelbaum, that he had asked Ruse for certain business records while he and another agent were investigating the banker, but had never received them.

Sorg called an early recess to allow defense attorney Robert Jarvis check revenue agents' reports.

Ruse was charged with embezzling $152,177 from the bank in 1952. He pleaded no defense and was placed on probation for three years after making restitution.

BARS HOFFA—Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts sits at desk in Washington after issuing a restraining order barring James Hoffa and others from taking office in the Teamster union. He ordered the Teamsters to appear Oct 21 and show cause why its convention should not be declared "void and of no effect."

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—A local symphony conductor admits he's having trouble with his "Satellite Symphony" He says it keeps coming out, 'beep . . . beep . . . beep.'

Law Violation Is Charged to Dept. of Welfare

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state auditor general's office charged today the Welfare Department violated the administrative code in awarding 35 construction contracts totaling $851,973.

Alfred T. Novello, deputy auditor general, said the department had circumvented the state Property and Supplies Department and awarded the contracts directly with contractors.

Novello said he was withholding payments to contractors of $520,024 pending "appropriate corrective action."

The Property and Supplies Department normally controls issuance of contracts for state projects as the state government's purchasing agency.

In a letter to Thomas J. Brennan, deputy welfare secretary, Novello said the department had "no function in the area of construction work and letting of contracts"

"The only gratifying facet in this entire matter is the apparent ready cooperation offered by the Property and Supplies Department to correct the situation and to immediately stop the practice," Novello said.

The contracts included work done at state hospitals at Somerset, Coaldale, Locust Mountain, Retreat, Torrance, Woodville, Clarks Summit, Fairview, Mayview, Ashland, Warren and Allentown, and state schools at Selinsgrove, Pennhurst, Polk and the Pennsylvania Training School at Huntingdon.

Bomb Hoax Forces Airliner's Return

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UP) — A bomb hoax forced a Mackey Airlines DC4 carrying 11 passengers to return here shortly after takeoff Wednesday night. The plane was bound from Nassau to St Petersburg via Fort Lauderdale, West Palm Beach and Tampa, when someone telephoned the airline office here reporting a bomb aboard the plane.

How to buy "vitamins"

Door-to-door peddlers are around now, selling vitamin preparations and nutritional supplements. The talk is mighty convincing. But, remember, talk won't do a thing for you There's only one way to be sure of what vitamin you need if any are needed at all. That is to see your family physician. He and he alone is qualified to prescribe for you. Always buy vitamins or nutritional supplements from a registered pharmacist. Then you'll know what you're getting—and you'll get your money's worth.
